FIVE DAYS OF HORROR IN YOKOHAMA QUAKE TOLD BY ELDER GILBERT

1,500 People Thrilled by Graphic Eyewitness Account of World's Greatest Tragedy As Seen From Stranded Steamer

More than 1500 Glendale people gathered yesterday afternoon in the natural amphitheatre on the new Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital grounds to hear Elder F. C. Gilbert of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination thrillingly describe five days of horror in Yokohama harbor where he was trapped on the Empress of Australia, arriving in Seattle a week ago yesterday with other refugees aboard the S. S. President Jefferson. ElderJ. L. McElhany, president of the Pacific Union Conference of the church, introduced the speaker, Elder R. W. Parmelee, local pastor, being in charge of other portions of the program. After prefacing his remarks, the text of Elder Gilbert's address was as follows:

By ELDER F. C. GILBERT

UNTIL modern times earthquakes were so far apart and so singular that if you were to turn to the book of Amos and read the first chapter and the first verse you would find that epoch-making periods were recognized in those days by an earthquake. That is to say that, instead of counting time as they do in Japan by the emperor, instead of counting time as we do by the Christian era, you will find that anciently often they marked periods by an earthquake. They were so sudden, so strange and so unexpected.

The Lord Jesus declared there would be earthquakes after He left us and went to heaven, not in one place, nor in two places nor in three places, but, said he, "there shall be earthquakes in many places." And as the prophet Isaiah said, when they did come they would come so suddenly that the people would be surprised and stunned.

Story of Kamakura

A refugee standing by my side on the Empress of Australia when word came to us that the large town of Kamakura, a very prominent place not far from Tokio was gone and had become practically a burning mass of a volcano, and when the man told him, said he, "Kamakura gone?"

Then said he, "everything is gone!"

Not long ago a very eminent scientist told us that as long as the volcano, not distant from Kamakura, was active and they had a volcano there that has been active for years, if not decades, that scientist said, there never could be an earthquake in that vicinity. And he gave as his reason that that constant flowing stream of lava was a sort of clearing-house for all earth's troubles there. As long as that thing was operative they need not fear! And now Kamakura is gone.

I want to tell you, my friends, one word of the living God and the living Christ is worth more than ten volumes of the sayings of men, and such things do come so suddenly and unexpectedly.

Cooling Showers Fall

On the first day of September, this month, it was a cloudless, beautiful, delightful morning. Several days before the heat had been very oppressive and very intensive in Japan. And in the night, Friday night, we had a shower, and it cooled the atmosphere, and it did seem so pleasant and delightful. I came from Shanghai on August 27, on that great leviathan, the Empress of Australia, a ship of 21,000 tons displacement.

The night before, on Friday night, a large steel ship came into the Yokohama harbor, called the Steel Navigator. As she backed to the wharf the stern of that ship came right plumb to the stern of the Empress of Australia, and when she dropped anchor, for some reason the chain of her anchor got mixed up with the propeller of our ship so that when they got through anchoring we were sort of tied together.

Delayed in Sailing

The captain said it was late and they did not want to bother in the night, inasmuch as they were leaving the next morning. But early next morning the commander of the Steel Navigator went ashore, and he left word that he would be back shortly. But the custom of the Empress ship is invariably to leave promptly at 12 o'clock noon on Saturday. Well. 10 o'clock passed, 11 o'clock, and he did not show up. The Empress wanted to be released and let go. But the men said, "We cannot do that because the commander is not here and he has left no one to act as officer of the ship."

When 11:30 came and the gongs went off and, as is customary on those large ocean liners, one gong goes off thirty minutes before the time of departure and fifteen minutes later another gong goes off to warn the friends that the ship will leave in fifteen minutes. And there we were, tied up.

Sensations Begin

I was sitting in my state room when all of a sudden—talk about sensation! There are some things you cannot tell about, you cannot explain, you cannot analyze, try as best you may. I thought inasmuch as I had heard the second gong go off that the engineer got excited, for it seemed to me that the engines were pumping away terribly. That great, mammoth ship jerked and jolted and seemed to kick, and I said, what in the world were they doing?

Instead of turning the ship out toward the harbor, I thought the pilot somehow had turned the

JAP POLICE SLAY NOTED SOCIALIST

Shakeup Follows Shooting as Indignation Blazes Throughout Tokio

TOKIO, Sept. 24.—Intense indignation continues to prevail throughout Tokio today following the shooting down of Sakae Osuki, noted Japanese socialist, by members of the gendarmerie patroling the ruins of the capital city.

As a result of the high feeling caused by Osuki's death, Captain Amakasu of the gendarmerie was court-martialed yesterday by a board of inquiry following a general shake-up in the martial law government of Tokio.

Former War Minister Yamanashi is in charge of the Tokio military police.

Osuki, is became known generally today, was shot down Sunday, September 16. He was widely known throughout Japan. His mistreatment by the capital police has created great antagonism among hundreds of his followers in Tokio. He had recently returned from France, where he had made a study of European socialism.

Survivors of Japan's Temblor Welcomed Home

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—More than 300 friends and relatives crowded the pier today as the President Pierce arrived here bringing seventy-five refugees of th Japanese earthquake. Most of the refugees were destitute but this was forgotten in the joy of their reunion with friends and relatives.

That the destroyer Whipple of the American Asiatic fleet was the first American war vessel to enter the inner Tokio harbor for relief work was revealed by James I. Mills, Chicago engineer. The Whipple was warned by Japanese naval authorities to remain outside the defense works but they were given a characteristic American reply by the Whipple's commander and the vessel continued its work of mercy unmolested.

Johnson Will Confer With Southern Aides

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—Senator Hiram Johnson arrived in Los Angeles this morning on the "Lark" shortly after 9 o'clock and went directly from the Southern Pacific station to the Alexander hotel where he planned to meet personal and political friends during the day.

The senator is visiting Southern California before returning to Washington for the December session of the sixty-eighth congress.

No formal program of entertainment for Senator Johnson was arranged for today but he will deliver an address tomorrow afternoon at the Orange county fair at Santa Ana.

On Wednesday the senator will visit San Bernardino and Riverside and on Thursday will go to Dan Diego for a day, returning to Los Angeles Friday morning.

Other than the Santa Ana speech, Senator Johnson has announced no public addresses during the present trip. It is expected, however, that the demands on his time will be great and that he will be asked to speak in Los Angeles before his final departure from the city.

MORAL FORCE LEADS TO PROGRESS

Hope for Civilization Seen in Armament Reduction Declares Coolidge

By KENNETH W. CLARK
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The hope of real progress in the future lies in the knowledge that civilization is coming to rely more and more upon "moral force" rather than armies and navies for the settlement of world problems, President Coolidge declared today in an address before the annual convention of the Red Cross in Continental Memorial hall.

"The American Red Cross," the president said, "is a spiritual conception of human relationship. It is life in obedience to things that are seen.

"Throughout history men have been prone to put their trust in other things and have failed. They have sought for power through material resources alone. They have thought it might be gained by the accumulation of great riches. They have attempted to rely upon naked force of armies and navies conquering by the right of the sword. They are necessary for the security, as police and criminal courts, and bolts and bars are necessary.

Negative Forces

"They are adjuncts of peace, but they are negative forces. They do not create, they resist. They are not the ultimate force in the world. They do not make the final determinations among men. Over them is a high power.

"Mankind has not yet, cannot yet, discard the use of these forces. It is significant, however, that the great nations have at last agreed upon their limitation. But it is even more significant that civilization is coming to rely more and more upon moral force."

This was Mr. Coolidge's first public address since he became president. As president also of the Red Cross, Mr. Coolidge formally opened the convention, which was attended by more than a thousand delegates from all over the country. Members of the cabinet, a number of foreign diplomats and many other government officials heard the president's address.

Action Is Needed

In the spiritual conception of world relationships, Mr. Coolidge pointed out, lies the hope of real progress. But the ideals of human brotherhood and service and peace "are idle dreams, unless they can be translated into action.

"It is necessary, on the one hand, to avoid the illusions of the visionaries, and on the other hand, the indifference of the selfish," he said. Each individual and each nation owe their first duty to themselves. Beyond that there is the obligation of the strong to serve the weak, but to administer such service in a way that will not destroy or degrade by making mendicants, but that will restore and strengthen by making character."

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 24.—The Angora government today made representations to the United States commissioner for withdrawal of American destroyers from Turkish waters.

ABANDONS RAIL UNIFICATION PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—With the understanding that President Coolidge does not look with favor upon plans for the consolidation of American railroads into a few major systems, Senator Albert Cummins, of Iowa, the Republican chairman of the senate interstate commerce commission, has abandoned his plan for legislation to make such consolidation compulsory, it was learned here today.

MEXICO LAND OF OPPORTUNITY NOW

Glendale Members Friendly Expedition Home With Glowing Reports

Glendale was well advertised by the local delegation which accompanied "The Friendship Expedition" to Mexico City under the auspices of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce in honor of the recognition of the Southern Republic by the United States.

Mayor Spencer Robinson of 1234 East Windsor road was "the life of the party," and sang himself into the hearts of the citizens of Mexico.

Other business people from here included Contractor Peter L. Ferry of 614 East Acacia avenue, Herman Nelson of 641 East Harvard street, manager of the Glendale Avenue Branch of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank, and Dr. Jessie A. Russell of 208 South Brand boulevard, realtor. All enjoyed a most educational outing.

Get Home Saturday

The three-week trip, which came to an end Saturday at twilight, was made in a special train over the National Railroad of Mexico, under the management of the Southern Pacific. The personnel of the party consisted largely of Los Angeles business men numbering about 150, many of whom made the trip especially to investigate investment possibilities in Mexico.

The itinerary included Tuscon, Arizona, El Paso and San Antonio, Texas; Chihuahua, Torreon, Guadelajara, Mexico City, Monterey and Nuevo Laredo, Mexico.

One of the features of the trip was a banquet given to the visitors by President Obregon of Mexico in his summer mansion, Teotihuacan. This was quite an elaborate affair. Previously President Obregon had received his guests in the administration building of the national government. He seemed very democratic, and entered the reception room unattended. Dr. Jessie Russell was somewhat more fortunate than the others for she was permitted a short conference with him.

Visit 'Pyramids'

The "pyramids" of Mexico were the objectives of a special excursion which consumed an entire day. They are located about sixty miles southwest of Mexico city at Chapultepec. Some of them are larger than the pyramids of Egypt and their origin is shrouded in the mystery of antiquity. They seem to have been erected in

Walton Ridicules Nightgown Legislative Session in Latest Statement

By J. L. KILGALLEN
For International News Service

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 24.—Governor J. C. Walton, Oklahoma's implacable foe of the Ku Klux Klan, today turned forth a barrage of ridicule on the knights of the "invisible empire."

He took occasion to deny flatly the statement of Representative W. C. McBee, leader of the "anti-Waltons," that there was any intimidation of legislators who plan to meet here Wednesday to impeach the governor.

"In my judgment," the governor said, "the appropriate place for this Klan legislature to meet Wednesday would not be at the capitol, but at the 'gulch' north of Rosehill graveyard. The paths leading to this place are well known to the 'Knights of the Nightgown.'"

Reports of intimidation and coercion have come to him over long distance telephone from legislators who answered his call for the meeting of the house, McBee said. Legislators, he said, have been told they would lose business; that to come to Oklahoma City would be "poor politics," and one of them, he said, was warned he "would be walking into a death trap."

The governor, in his latest talk to newspapermen, denied that his fight on the KuKlux Klan was actuated by political motives and said he would not be a candidate for United States senator in the 1924 election.

Water Stained Records in Navy Wreck Probe

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 24.—Commander Leslie Bratton, judge advocate of the court, took the stand at 9:30 when the court convened for its second week, and identified twenty-seven documents salvaged from the wrecked destroyers. These exhibits included the rough logs of all the lost vessels except the flagship Delphy and the Young, the latter having capsized soon after striking the rocks.

The water-stained records were introduced as exhibits in order that thirteen defendant officers who are to follow each other on the stand may make free use of them during the giving of their testimony.

Captain Edward H. Watson, commander of the ill-fated squadron, the officer of highest authority and therefore responsibility, took the stand at 10:10. The witness appeared to be laboring under a high nervous excitement as he began his recital of the fatal voyage.

ELKS BAND WINS CUP AT EUREKA

Arthur H. Dibbern Elected State Vice President, J. A. Apffel Reports

The delegation of fifty-four Glendale Elks and their families returned home at 6:30 o'clock this morning from their six-day outing at Eureka, in Humboldt county, where they attended the annual convention of the state association.

They came back exhilirated from their picnic among the big trees and flushed with victory, for the local Elks' band had won the state championship cup, while Arthur H. Dibbern, past exalted ruler, had been elected vice president of the association.

Mr. Dibbern, who did not attend the convention, expresses himself as much surprised over this singular honor bestowed upon him by his fellow Elks of California. Early in the summer he was a delegate to the session of the Grand Lodge in Atlanta, Ga.

Reports On Trip

James A. Apffel, exalted ruler, of the local lodge reports a most delightful outing, and the succession of barbecues, banquets, programs and other events among the Sequoias served to heighten everyone's spirits.

Hundreds of Elks were assembled for the convention, states Mr. Apffel, who adds that ample entertainment was provided for the ladies, as well as the men, in the nature of dances and sight-seeing expeditions.

The band contest was held on Friday, at noon, September 21, with Glendale, Pasadena, San Pedro, Sacramento and Oakland lodges competing. While Glendale won the championship, there was keen competition and some excellent music was heard, he states.

Khodigian Plays Host

Friday night M. Khodigian, well known local Elk, entertained the entire Glendale lodge with an Italian banquet. It was at this time that Mr. Apffel was toasted. Toasts were also drunk to the band and a very pleasant time was enjoyed.

Saturday morning was taken up with the business session of the convention, at which time Arthur H. Dibbern was elected vice president of the state association. That afternoon a mammoth parade took place, such as Eureka had probably never before seen.

It was as a result of this parade that another laurel came home to the local lodge, the Glendale Elks' band winning the cup given by the association for the band making the best public appearance.

4 AERONAUTS KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Exploding Balloon Cremates Two U. S. Flyers in Race for Bennett Trophy

By F. A. ABBOTT
For International News Service

BRUSSELS, Sept. 24.—The United States army balloon S-6, which started in the international race for the James Gordon Bennett cup, was struck by lightning near Nistlerode, Holland, killing the pilot, Lieutenant Olmstead and his assistant, Lieutenant Shiptaw, said a dispatch to race headquarters today. The balloon fell in flames.

The balloon ran into a violent thunder and lightning storm which played havoc with them. Up to noon word had been received of the death of five men and the serious injury of another.

All of the Americans are out of the race. The United States navy balloon A-6699, piloted by Lieutenant Lawrence, landed safely near Cutten, Holland, while the third American entry, piloted by Ralph Honeywell, failed to start.

Find Charred Wreckage

The first intimation the Belgian aero club head of the American tragedy was receipt of a telegram at 9:35 o'clock, signed by a Dutch doctor. He said that the charred wreckage of a balloon had fallen near Nistelrode and that the occupants, both dead, had been identified as Lieutenants Olmstead and Shiptaw.

This was only one of a series of messages telling of disaster and death.

Two Swiss lieutenants had been killed when the Swiss balloon Geneva was struck by lightning near Beverlee. The victims were Lieutenants Von Gruningen and Weren, of the Swiss army.

America Hoped to Hold Bennett Trophy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—Government aeronautical circles were shocked today at news of the death of Lieut. Robert S. Olmstead and Lieut. John W. Shiptaw, of the army air service, who were killed while taking part in the Gordon Bennett balloon race, starting from Brussels on Sunday.

It had been hoped that the American balloon S-6, winner of the national balloon race at Indianapolis on July 4, would bring the Gordon Bennett cup to the United States for the fifth and last time. Under the rules governing this race, which is the oldest aeronautical classic in the world, the country winning five contests retains permanent possession of the trophy.

The United States has won four times—in 1906, 1909, 1910 and 1913, and if Lieutenants Olmstead and Shiptaw had been successful in the present race, the Gordon Bennett cup race would have finally become the property of this country.

GIRLS END LONG HIKE IN GLENDALE

Ethel Rowe and Jeannette Conrad of Elgin, Ill., Walk Over Ten States

By RUTH E. SPAFFORD
Of The Evening News Staff

A hike across ten states was the unusual experience of Miss Ethel Rowe and her friend, Miss Jeannette Conrad, both of Elgin, Ill., who are visiting with Miss Rowe's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rowe of 216 South Orange street. Here is the tale they tell:

Miss Rowe and Miss Conrad left their home in Elgin, Ill., on June 19, dressed in khaki suits, heavy walking boots and carrying small packs on their backs, containing only absolute necessities, they set out on the Lincoln highway for Colorado. Their first stop for any length of time was made in La Junta, where they visited three days with Miss Dorothy Morrison, a friend. They spent a day in Colorado Springs and Denver. also,

"Hop" Freight Train

They hiked all the way with the exception of an occasional ride for a few miles with motorists, until they reached West Water, Utah, where they boarded a freight train, riding as comfortable as possible to Green River, Utah, They state they found people unusually kind and willing to help them in their long journey.

The hardest part of the trip was made through the desert, but every now and then they would reach a lone house occupied by kindly people who would give them food and a place to rest. At night, if they were several miles from a town they would make their beds beside the road.

From Green River, Wyo., they hiked to Salt Lake City, and from there to Yellowstone National park, enjoying the beautiful scen-

Higher Club Dues

One of the big features at the presidents' council of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's clubs at the Los Angeles Ebell clubhouse today, was the discussion of club budgets.

Apropos of this subject is the statement recently made by Mrs. Charles H. Toll, federation president, advocating higher club dues.

"The big item upon which all clubs may base their activities is the dues received from membership in the club," said Mrs. Toll. "I am thoroughly convinced that women in most clubs have far too small dues. They are still running their clubs on a pre-war basis. Men are amazed at the things women accomplish with the small amounts they receive, and were it not that women are such good managers and planners, plus an abundance of common sense, unbounded energy and devotion to the cause they espouse, they never could have built clubhouses and furnished them, too, on mere pittances of dues as they have done.

"I feel the dues of each club should be enough to permit it to finance the trip of its president at least to the annual convention, and to the presidents' councils. We hope that the presidents of the far-distant clubs may be able to attend these".

Eastern Stars

In response to the invitation from Glen Eyrie chapter, No. 237, O. E. S., of Glendale, over fifty matrons and patrons of 1923 of Eastern Star lodges in Southern California, were honored guests Saturday night in the Masonic temple on South Brand boulevard. Each guest was privileged to bring one of their lodge members, known in lodge parlance as "trailers," and there were sixty of these present.

It is customary for all Southern California lodges to entertain this matrons' and patrons' association once each year and the affair given Saturday night by Glendale Eastern Stars proved a most brilliant one.

Representatives were present from lodges in Los Angeles, Fullerton, Santa Ana, Anaheim, Pomona, Long Beach, Pasadena, Hollywood, Burbank, Eagle Rock, Garvanza and other cities.

Greetings to the visitors were given by Miss Mildred Lyon and Harry L. Redd, worthy matron and patron of Glen Eyrie chapter. Responses were from Mrs. Daisy Brown, matron of Garvanza chapter and chairman of the association of matrons and patrons, and by William Snowden, patron of Southgate lodge in Los Angeles.

A program of entertainment followed, including a humorous talk by Jack McDougall, patron of 1922 of Southgate lodge; whistling solo by Mrs. Helen Paine accompanied by Mrs. Alice Bowles; saxophone solo by Jackie Barton, accompanied by Miss Pansy Corp.

The company later adjourned to the banquet room downstairs for a supper and later enjoyed dancing. Beautiful pink and white dahlias were effectively used in decoration.

Some clever favors were presented during the evening. The honored matrons received clever shopping lists, while the 1923 patrons were presented with wool dusters. For the "trailers" there were bud vases for the women and ivory pocket combs for the men.

During the grand march, led by Mrs. Daisy Brown and H. L. Redd, those participating were given snappers and gay-colored balloons.

Several grand officers were among those entertained.

Mrs. Orma Vesper Naudain was chairman of the general committee. She was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Worley, Mrs. Carrie Baird, Mrs. Ellis Thomas, Mrs. Mae Warrick, Miss Mae Cornwell, Mrs. Eunice Rudolph, Mrs. Emma Beckett.

Theatres

THE GLENDALE

"The White Rose", D. W. Griffith's newest production, is now showing at the Glendale Theatre, where it will continue today, Tuesday and Wednesday. In the direction of this super-film, Mr. Griffith has chosen for his theme the dual moral code, building up a tremendous and beautiful love story.

Georgia, Louisiana and Florida, with their exotic backgrounds, have been chosen as the settings for "The White Rose," which further establishes this prominent director as the pastoral master of the cinema. No such unbroken sequence of throbbingly lovely scenes have ever before been photographed.

Add to this a drama of love so enthralling, so finely wrought, so full of passion and feeling, so true to life as to be heart-rending, and the result is one of the best pictures ever made in America.

THE GATEWAY

"Circus Days" shows at the Gateway theatre today, with little Jackie Coogan in the lead. The production, a First National release, presented by Sol Lesser, contains all the thrills of the Big Tent, all its glamour, noise, bang and joy, in the greatest picture of Jackie's wonderful career.

The story is an adaptation from James Otis' celebrated tale of circus life, "Toby Tyler." Seven great tents were actually employed in the filming of the sequences, the producer not being satisfied to take mere pot shots at various circus organizations. The result is a most realistic and sincere picture.

A free auto park has been provided on the lot immediately adjoining the Gateway theatre on the north, roomy, well-lighted, and in charge of a uniformed attendant, the management announces.

SPECIALTY SHEET METAL WORKERS

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Manufacturers, Locate Plant in Burbank

This city has been selected as the location for a sheet metal manufacturing company and a roofing plant, the two, when finished, to be operated in conjunction.

William Sporeman and F. P. Lamb of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, are behind the twin plants, which will occupy two adjoining thirty-foot front lots on Santa Anita avenue, just opposite the armory.

The lots were purchased by Mr. Sporeman, the deal being closed with G. Rehtmeyer. Farley & Farley are announced as the contractors who will put up the buildings.

The sheet metal company will manufacture store fronts, cornices, skylights and similar products. The roofing plant will turn out tile, lath and other roofing materials.

The new industries will bring several families to Burbank from Iowa, where Mr. Sporeman has been operating a similar business. He arrived in Burbank less than two weeks ago, accompanied by Amos Houser, Carl Algum, J. H. Kerr and Chris Freese, all of whom are understood to be looking for locations here.

Mr. Sporeman will remain in this city and superintend construction of the plant, while his helpers back in Iowa will pack up and start west as soon as they can get their things together.

It is expected that the new plants will be in operation before the end of the year, and that when in full swing they will add a score or more of men to the city's payroll.

Double Happiness

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Walsh, daughter of Mrs. Ethel D. Walsh of 342 North Kenwood street, to John Wiggers, son of Mrs. J. F. McNutt of 557 West Stocker street, took place Saturday night, September 22, 1923, at the home of Miss Walsh's cousin, Mrs. C. P. Blakemore, 3944 Ingraham street Los Angeles, and an added happines of the occasion was that the ceremony celebrated the golden wedding of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Dorchester, who arrived in March from Iowa to reside permanently in Glendale.

Tall baskets of pink and white dahlias decorated the Blakemore home, and an arch of pink and white carnations and greenery was built in the living room. From the arch was suspended a wedding bell, under which the bridal party stood for the ceremony, read by Rev. Bayley of Pasadena. There were sixty-five relatives and friends present.

Two bridal songs, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly," were sung by Mrs. King of Santa Ana, accompanied by Mrs. Helen Sawyer of Glendale. Mrs. Sawyer played the Lohengrin "Bridal Chorus" as the processional, and played softly during the ceremony.

The two little flower girls entered first, Dorothy Jane King of Santa Ana, dressed in pink taffeta, and Dorothy Dorchester of Los Angeles, in pink and white organdy. Each carried a small pink and white basket filled with flowers to scatter in the path of the bride.

Miss Lona Gross of Glendale was maid of honor. She wore white organdy and carried an arm shower of pink and white sweetpeas and maiden hair fern.

Miss Walsh entered with her brother, Dorchester Walsh of Glendale. Her bridal gown was a creation of white Canton crepe, real lace and pearls. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses, lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern.

Carroll Blakemore of Los Angeles attended Mr. Wiggers as best man.

The last members of the bridal party to enter were Mr. and Mrs. Dorchester, the bride and groom of fifty years ago. Mrs. Dorchester wore white lace net over lavender and carried lavender and white sweetpeas.

Before reading the bridal service Rev. Bayley spoke briefly of the impressiveness of the occasion, celebrating the marriage of the young couple and the fiftieth anniversary of the bride's grandparents.

After the ceremony congratulations were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Wiggers and to Mr. and Mrs. Dorchester, and later the bride's cake and the golden wedding cake were cut and served.

Mrs. Blakemore was assisted by the bride's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiggers left yesterday for a five months' trip east, to visit New York, Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, New Orleans and other eastern cities and points of interest. They plan to reside in Glendale in their own home, to be built in the Kenneth road district.

Both young people have countless friends in Glendale and Burbank, both being associated with the Moreland Motor Truck company. Mrs. Wiggers and her mother came to Glendale three years ago and the daughter occupied a position in the multigraph department at the Moreland plant.

Mr. Wiggers is chief engineer at the Moreland plant, and has resided in Glendale for several years. He has been in the employ of the Moreland company for thirteen years.

honor of one of the tribal gods, Quetzacoatl.

A bull fight at Mexico City was put on, September 16, in honor of Mexican Independence day. The only one of the local party who witnessed this was Mr. Ferry. He found it very exciting—almost too much so—especially, when one of the six bulls carelessly threw a matador over his back to the ground behind his tail.

"One bull fight is all I want to see," exclaimed Mr. Ferry.

Highways Are Needed

Lack of suitable highways and adequate transportation explains Mexico's failure to keep up with the march of civilization, in the opinion of Mayor Robinson and Contractor Ferry. They observed that very few of the cities through which they passed have any paved streets, and that the country is almost devoid of roads. All farm and dairy produce is hauled to market on the back of small burros. These are very strong—and very slow.

"Imagine an American farmer going to market chasing six donkeys," exclaimed the mayor, with a laugh.

Primitive farming methods were observed along the right-of-way. Peons could be seen plowing with the equipment used on some of oxen. A complete contrast was the large ranches which are being managed under modern methods. These seemed to be well stocked with modern farm machinery and tractors.

Heavy Tax On Liquor

Although Mexico has not yet adopted prohibition, practically no intoxication was observed. Americans were informed that Former President Diaz took steps, which are still being carried out, to place liquor out of the reach of the peons. This he did by placing a high tax on it, so that the retail price had to be raised beyond their reach.

Mexico City, which has a population of amout 1,000,000, was found to be quite metropolitan. It has street cars, telephones, electric lights and all the latest products of civilization. While there Mayor Robinson had the privilege of singing on the stage of the National Theatre of Mexico.

Gets Information

Dr. Jessie Russell made the trip to obtain first-hand information in regard to extensive holdings in Lower California, which she has controlled for a number of years. She was given every courtesy by members of Obregon's cabinet, and was privileged to meet Senior Cordova, minister of agriculture, and Senior Laguna, publisher of "La Universal." She was convinced of the stability of Mexico, and has decided that when the property is sold, she will reinvest a portion of the income in additional Mexican land.

The united opinion of the local delegates seems to be that the trip was well worth while, but that there is no place like Glendale.

Civic Center Meeting Called for October 1

Because of agitation on the part of many certain individuals in regard to securing the high school as a civic center, Alex Mitchell called the civic center committee together Saturday at Jensen's Egyptian Village.

Mr. Mithell reported that certain individuals had been asking why no action was being taken by the civic center committee and were urging that something be done to get the sentiment of the people on this question. All of the members were in favor of action and passed a resolution calling for a mass meeting at the high school on Monday evening, October 1.

At this meeting the various members of the committee will report their findings, and then pass the topic over to those present to take any action they see fit..

ELDER GILBERT'S ADDRESS THRILLS

Graphically Describes Five Days of Horror in Bay of Yokohama

ship the other way and the stern of that ship was pounding against that concrete wall. And for just about four or five seconds, for I want to tell you, friends, as I will recite to you the terrible disaster that followed, the whole thing was done in about four seconds. That's all.

Tragedy Is Wrought

Just then the door to my cabin opened and the Chinese boy came in and I said:

"Boy, what's the matter?"

He said, "Master, quick, quick, I must close the porthole."

And just as I looked up, why, the sky had become dark, sort of grey. He said, "Mister go upstairs, quick, quick," and I hurried up stairs as fast as I could.

And I saw a sight I hope the good Lord, if it be His will, will deliver me from ever seeing anything like it.

The great customs house of Yokohama had become inundated. All the buildings and offices in connection therewith had become submerged. The end of the wharf was all down under the water. The large buildings on the wharf—mammoth ones—with reinforced concrete, several of them, down they went!

To my right was a building of reinforced concrete in the process of construction. Down it went more than half-way. Great blocks of cement, many of them largely broken up, some of them leaning in the water at an angle of forty-five degrees.

People Go Insane

The large gangplanks on which men, women and children were passing to and from the ship were turned over, down into the water, and everywhere men, women and children, so pitifully looking like men who had clung to a piece of raft, looking to somebody to come and help them. That isn't all, but, oh, how men and women—scores and hundreds of them—were running and yelling and shouting and hooting. But running where?

My friends, we have been accustomed to believe and each that our mundane sphere was terra firma, and if we could only have some soil to stand on our legs were all right. These men and women by the score and score were trying to get away from the earth, to get something that their legs could stand on. Some of them with bleared eyes, insane; they ran to the barges, they ran hither and yon, crying and shouting and yelling to get somewhere. The air had become gray and shortly became dark and cloudy, and there that great leviathan, as I told you, 21,000 tons, had become separated from the wharf, between twenty-five and thirty feet.

Ships Take Fire

Many of the craft in the harbor, some barges and launches and tugs, probably 500 or 1000 or 1500 tons, took fire, and the masters of them had abandoned them to the mercy of the wind and the waves. As they sort of meandered around they got in between the wharf and our ship, and there those boats—scores of them—were all on fire. That wharf, as I see it now, solid concrete, reinforced, some of the piles were about three or four feet square and about eight or ten feet in the water, not only solid and attached to the wharf, but they actually were attached by great, big iron plates, some of them three and four feet square, and the piles were pulled away from the wharf from those iron plates anywhere from six inches to four feet.

And then, out there in the harbor was a beautiful breakwater. Yokohama was noted for its beautiful breakwater, and down it went, and everything went down.

Sky Becomes Blood Red

Then we began to look around. And, my friends, not less than a few minutes, not one nor two nor twenty nor fifty, until there were a hundred fires burning everywhere.

The sky got red. Christ said there should be great signs in the heaven. Many a man said to me, some men repeated it, said it once and twice, stout-hearted men, some of them had followed the sea thirty and thirty-five years, when they saw those terrible sights said again and again, "The last day has come."

From three to five hours you never saw blood redder than that sun was red, and then as the fires lighted up the heavens all around it seemed as though there was one great conflagration, one great flame, and the oil joined in so that some parts of the sky were red, some were gray with the smoke and some parts were black, and the combination seemed to terrify the stoutest-hearted man.

We waited a ilttle while and very soon the word went around that rescue parties had been formed, and I went below decks and some had gotten across in little barges in little tugs from the shore and what was left of the wharf and came running to the ship.

Refugees Come Aboard

Immediately the Empress of Australia sent the men downstairs for duty at the ropes. They said now take the rope and tie it tbout you, and we began to pull them on deck. I remember the first two who came on deck were two young girls. Evidently they had been in some burning building and managed to get out alive. Their faces were covered with soot.

I remember the girl said, "Am I here? Am I here?"

And they came, one and another and another, and I tell you, my friends, the stories they told me of deliverance and rescue and help, were nothing more nor less than miraculous, and marvelous. Then they started to bring what refugees they could to the ship.

It was simply wonderful the way the officers and most of the crew of the Australia gave themselves over unselfishly to the rescue of men and women and helping to treat the sick and the injured, and immediately that mammoth ship was turned into a refugee camp and into a hospital.

Between 1 and 10 o'clock that night we had on board no less than 1500 refugees. There came on that ship men who a few minutes before were millionaires and who thanked God that they got away with their lives. They came on board with broken backs, broken legs and broken arms and broken heads.

It was sad, it was pathetic to see those poor people, and the situation was so serious.

Could Not Weep

The sad part of it was that the situation was so serious that men and women could not cry. You know sometimes amid grief if a person is only able to shed tears, how much relief the individual often gets. But they just could not cry. Pretty soon we would hear, O, where is my husband? where is my wife? where are my children?

I remember one lady. She came and stood by my side and said, "Do you see that place there on the bluff? I had a beautiful home there. It is all gone now, but where is my husband?"

And I will tell you, it was sad to listen to those poor people, as they came on board and told their experiences. Thus the day wore on. Everything on shore seemed to be united in burning. One great mass of fire! One great volume! A lot of the people on board got frightened. Scores, if not hundreds of them, went and got life-savers for they did not know any minute what might happen to them.

Fight for Their Lives

A lot of the barges had got in between what was left of the wharf and us, and took fire. And here and there was a barge of some other combustible substance taking fire.

For hours and hours and hours the pumps of the Empress of Australia pumped 320 gallons of water every sixty seconds and tried to quell some of those fires. Many a man, faithful at his post, stood right there with a hose and with a nozzle six, eight and ten hours, and never let the nozzle out of his hands, pouring the water with the hope that in some way the thing might be quelled.

Hundreds Roasted Alive

Then they came on, hundreds and hundreds of them, and told us the situation on shore. Those mammoth buildings, those wonderful institutions, and then many of them, as they witnessed these things, told us how the men and women got out of the burning buildings, and as they would see a hole to get out they would see some steps of a building, and the building was standing, or it may be they saw an alleyway that seemed to be a place of refuge, not taking time to look around.

They would gather fifty, 100 and 200, and the fire would come and catch them and roast them alive. It was simply awful, and it took them all so unexpectedly.

I met a little boy on the boat, a pretty little fellow, about 8 or 9 years.

I said: "Son, where did you come from?"

He said: "I have been over here since June. My father was the superintendent of the British Naval hospital. Mother and I came over in June, and when the quake came I was looking over a photograph album."

"Where is your father?"

"He is here on the ship."

His Mother Killed

"Where is your mother?"

He said: "She is dead.

And after a while the man tried to see if he could not find his wife, and he found her partly burned. He just took a little dirt and covered her up and left her.

Then right in connection with that another sad feature of the tragedy was that Yokohama was noted for its beautiful water mains. They had mains in Yokohama some of them three or four five feet in diameter. The water mains broke and that helped make rivers and ponds and canals and mud holes, so what the earthquake did not do the fire did, and what the earthquake and fire did not do the water did. So the poor people were seen floating down the canals and rivers by the scores and by the hundreds.

City Reduced to Ashes

That night and early the next morning the thing burned and burned.

I had a note made on the back of a record book that just before the fire and earthquake Yokohama had a population of between four and five hundred thousand, almost as large as San Francisco. When I left there five days later, the next Thursday, there were not three buildings standing in the city of Yokohama, and I haven't any idea that there were 50,000 left in the city or in its suburban territory.

Many people who came across from Tokio said again and again that "the strange thing is that we looked away in the country but we could not see any houses." Everything was down flat so that there must have been at least three or four thousand people perished in the city of Yokohama alone.

Tried To Get Away

There were great fissures in the ground, large holes, some of which were large enough, they said, you could almost float some of those great monstrous boats And you could look down fifteen or twenty feet in the ground. Some of the cemeteries had the large tombstones turned over and some of the tombs were opened up so that Yokohama city became a complete wreck, desolate, destroyed and wiped out.

We not only had those boats coming around and burning but toward evening the captain of the Empress of Australia tried to get detached from the Steel Navigator, but the men on that ship said the commander had not come. The poor man perished on shore.

In Sea of Burning Oil

We tried with the hope that we might be able to get away, and the captain, evidently in turning the Australia, got her stern away a little further from the wharf and the bow of the ship right close to the shore, and right near the one great building in which was stored tons and tons of supplies, and that took fire. And there was the bow of our ship, the nose of it from twenty to twenty-five feet from that blazing flame.

Why talk about having life-savers? Every once in a while we would hear another explosion. Gasoline tanks and gas tanks, tank after tank of some description which went off with the result that there were tons and tons of oil distributed over hundreds and hundreds of acres of surface of water so that the water became one great layer of oil. So what was the use of a life-saver under those conditions?

Late in the evening I was very tired but tried to do what I could to help. Every once in a while we would see some men come on deck. I went below about 7 o'clock and I met several men and their eyes looked as though they had been on a terrible drunken spree.

One of them put his hands over his face and shouted, "O, God, is it possible that a man could have such power of endurance? Give me a cup of tea. Give me something to drink."

Gives Aid to Refugees

Some of the refugees got away from the burning buildings and tried to get as far away from the fires as they could. So the only place they could go was out into the water, and some of them stayed three or four or five hours with the hot sun on their head and with the dampness of the water, and it almost made some of them insane. I took one man and put him into a bath tub, and all the poor man could say was, O, my head, my head. The man finally went to a hospital, and the last I heard of the poor man he was still there. His wife and everything was gone.

So, we got through the night. We managed to get the fires out. It was a terrible tension. But about 8 or 9 o'clock that night all the life boats were ready to lower any minute. At a time like that, neither lifeboats nor lifesavers amount to much. And God pity the poor person who has no more of a hope than a lifeboat or a lifesaver.

Untangle Trapped Ships

In the night there were several barges not very far from land. In fact, I might state this in passing, you might wonder how we got loose from the Navigator. During the evening, you know, when a ship is anchored it has a little play. So this Navigator kept going up and down and crashed into the stern of the Empress boat, smashing the wooden fence and a great deal of the iron fence. It was a good thing that the men and women got away from it or else they would have been crushed too.

It was decided that they would go to work and cut the chain of the anchor Saturday night. They went to work and cut the chain and finally when it dropped, of course, that released our propeller. The captain did not dare to handle it for he did not know what had happened. But some of the knives might have broken and it might have been in bad shape.

Into Raging Inferno

The pilot of our ship got on to the Steel Navigator and took it out a little from us so that we might, if thought best, be able to navigate a little. So we got away a little from where we were and got closer toward what once was shore. Right near that section of the shore were a number of oil barges burned to the surface, and there on the surface of the water within fifty rods of our ship was a great amount of oil on the water about 100 feet long and fifty feet wide, and the top of it was anywhere from six to eighteen or twenty inches of oil. It was on fire. The wind was headed as direct as it could be right for our ship. I will tell you about that time the poor officers of our ship came nearly getting discouraged. And the fire some of the time went up from 150 to 300 feet high. And it made a coil almost like a cylinder. It was a great wall of fire and headed straight for our ship. The farther it went the more oil it had to feed the flames. It was a great lake of oil.

Offers Prayer

I made up my mind the time had come, not for me to get a lifesaver, but to get on my knees, for, if not, we were doomed. And, as I learned afterward, the officers of that ship had just about decided to beach the ship. Now you know what that means. They had decided to let the ship go and let everybody go and do the best they could.

I went down to my room. I locked my door, and I got on my knees, and there I poured out my soul to God, and I said: "Thank God in an hour like this, when men need help from God, Jesus Christ always stands by His children." When I got up from that season of prayer, I said: "Thank God, this ship will never burn."

I went up on deck, and there men stood who did not have much color in their faces. Here was the bow of the ship and not more than fifty rods away was this great wall of fire headed straight for it. They turned on the nozzles. I suppose there were 150 to 200, hoping to keep the oil away from the ship. It made no more impression on that oil than a needle in a haystack. And there they would work, hours it seemed, and the oil would just come right along.

The men and women looked pretty dubious. I said: "Friends, do not worry; God is not going to let this ship burn."

All of a sudden, it seemed so marvelous, I saw that wind that was blowing this way swing right around and headed right direct for the shore instead of for the ship, and by degrees the fire kept getting less and soon it died away!

Relief Ship Comes

Next day word went around that the Empress of Canada was coming. The Canada came and a counsel was held and they sent a lot of refugees on to Kobe, a city of about 1,000,000 inhabitants.

A little later the President Jefferson came in so I got my baggage all ready and something just seemed to say to me to just keep easy. The next day I saw two of our brethren from Japan, and these two young men told me of conditions in Ogukibo.

Tokio is considered about the center of the earthquake area of the world, and although the damage done by the quake was done in four seconds, from the time they had the first quake until a week after the seismograph registered 1000 earth tremors.

Fire and Tidal Wave

While the quake hit Yokohama so terribly Tokio was not damaged so much by earthquake, but the fires and tidal wave did the mischief in Tokio. Three-fourths of the houses in Tokio are empty. Where are the people? One sad feature is that when the quake came the people went to work and gathered their stuff together, so these poor souls got their bureaus out and stuffed their drawers full and were not watching that the fires were burning all around them.

The fires burned like the crescent of the moon, and I suppose there were thousands of the poor people who were roasted to death. Most of the buildings in Tokio are down either by the quake or by the fire. Japan did all she could to bring in foodstuffs as fast as possible.

Yokohama is gone. People have asked me how many I think had been killed. Friends, I do not know. I have no idea. Out of a population of about 500,000 I do not suppose there are more than 50,000 left. In fact there was such a terrible situation that word came to us on Wednesday night that they could not get around to bury the dead, so the only thing they could do was to start a public crematory. And in all parts of the city they burned up the bodies. That was the only way they could attempt to clear away the dead to prevent plague and pestilence.

Naval Base Destroyed

All that America could do she did, and the work of rescue went on and on. Eighteen miles from the Bay of Yokohama Japan had one of her greatest naval bases. For four days and four nights we watched the smoke of the naval base and, I believe, it has burned to the ground.

The Imperial Hotel is still standing but large sections of the town are wiped out and I presume there are not less than 750,000 killed, and it might run up to a million or a million and a half. Never since the days of the flood has there been such a disaster as that which has struck Japan.

Photos Taken as Earthquake Crumpled Japan; Shows How Thousands in Yokohama Met Death

Photograph taken in one of Yokohama's main streets after shock, before fire had destroyed all but three buildings

These remarkable photographs were taken from the deck of an ocean liner trapped in Yokohama harbor, as Elder F. C. Gilbert graphically described in his speech here yesterday, and the pictures were rushed across the Pacific on the S. S. Sport Snaps by JACK KEENE

Based on the "misery loves company" theory probably, it has been discovered that a sort of affinity exists between the umpires and policemen. George Hildebrand, himself an umpire, has proof of the bond between these two classes of outcasts and tells this story of an experience he had in Los Angeles as the proof:

Hildebrand had gone down to Los Angeles from his winter home in San Francisco; a friend had loaned him a car to make some calls and he was driving around the Angel City in blissful ignorance of its traffic regulations. He had business with a certain concern and having found its location, turned around a corner, saw a vacant space that looked good for parking and proceeded to pull in.

Next thing he was in the hands of a traffic cop.

"What's the matter with you; can't you see?" was the question shot at him.

Hildebrand, used to sudden emergencies on the ball field, answered without a flutter:

"Why, yes; I'm supposed to have pretty good eyes."

"Well, you just ignored three turn-to-the-left signs and you're breaking another rule parking in here."

The cop pulled out his pad, did some writing on it, handed Hildy a tag, and told him to report at the city hall the next morning to tell the judge about it.

But Hildy planned to be on his way before next morning and began to think fast. Leaning over to the cop he said confidentially:

"See here, Mr. Cop, you and I are two fellows who haven't many friends anyway, and you're not making any more by tagging me; neither of us can afford to add to our enemies."

"What are you driving at?" asked the cop.

"Just this; you're a copper and I'm an umpire—there ought to be some sympathy between fellows in our business."

The traffic officer began to laugh. "Damned if you're not right in putting it that way," he said, "Guess nobody loves you any more than they love me, and we ought to be friends among ourselves. Where do you umpire?"

"My name's Hildebrand and I'm an umpire in the American League," explained the detained autoist.

"That so? Well, just get around the corner to do your parking and when you get there tear up that tag that tells you to report to the judge," was the parting word of the traffic man, as he blew his whistle at another violator coming down the street and hustled to tag him.

"That shows there is a bond of sympathy between us outcasts." said Hildy as he finished telling his story.

There is matter for thought in the report from Europe that Arne Borg of Sweden shattered the world's swimming record for 500 meters recently, while J. Vierkodder of Germany, runner-up in the race, displayed such remarkable form that now he is looked upon abroad as a coming champion himself. The news brings to mind afresh the fact that we have in this country few ranking candidates for the longer free style events slated to be held at the Olympic games in Paris next year.

It will be recalled that a short while ago Andrew Charlton, of Australia was credited with world's record time for 880 yards, while his fellow-countryman Moss Christie, showed international rating at one mile. There is no overlooking, therefore, that at least four of the swimmers who will oppose Americans in Paris stand out as most dangerous contenders for honors in the 400 and 1500 meter free style contests.

Most of us no doubt feel confident that John Weissmuller can defeat any man in the world at any distance, provided he is in top form. But rather alarming bulletins come from Chicago concerning the condition of the Illinois A. C. marvel, who suffered a complete breakdown lately, and medical authorities offer no assurance that he will recover full and regain his best speed within a twelvemonth. Then, too, it must be considered that Weissmuller cannot be expected to compete in all the events in which we should like to see him start, including the free style and back stroke sprints and the relay race. Nor is it certain that William Bachlach, his coach, will approve of his entering the 1500 meter swim, since 500 meters is the longest course he has tackled to date.

Under the circumstances it will be decidedly unwise to count too much on Weissmuller and there is imperative need of taking steps to prepare our swimmers for middle distance competition, for none but Weissmuller has returned times warranting the belief that he is superior to the noted quartet of foreign champions. Of late there has been a good deal of talk on the part of the A. A. U. authorities in regard to making efforts to develop watermen and maids for the international meet, but it has stopped at that—talk. Nothing definite has been done toward strengthening the weakest spot on our prospective Olympic swimming team, yet the time is growing short and immediate action is required if anything at all is to be accomplished.

The one way to achieve results is to begin at once to encourage middle distance contestants by listing often throughout the country attractive events and engaging the co-operation of all coached in inducing their best pupils to enter said events and specialize for them at practice.

Fred Fulton, the elongated plasterer, is contemplating a trip to Europe. When M. Eudeline, Eugene Criqui's manager, returned to France he carried with him orders to arrange matches for Fulton with the leading heavyweights of Europe. The much battered battler figures that he could make a good showing with Frank Morgan, Joe Becket and several other leading lights and if Eudeline can do any business for him he will leave in the fall or the early winter. Provided everything goes through as planned and Fulton is successful in his conquest of Europe, a match between Jack Dempsey and Fulton in Paris would be in the making. The Europeans are anxious to see the champion in action and a bout with Fulton would certainly draw if the plasterer can first put away three or four favorites on the other side.

HENDERSON SEES S. C. SQUAD WORK

Game Against Caltek This Week-end Looks Like Easy Victory

By "DOC" M'GILLIS
Of The Evening News Staff

Elmer G. Henderson, head football mentor at the University of Southern California, had a chance to view his 1923 cohorts in action fr the first time Saturday afternon, when the varsity eleven hooked up with Leo Calland's 1927 Freshman squad. No score was tabulated (at least, none was made public) but it's a cinch the first stringers had a full afternoon's job in holding the husky peagreeners down.

The season begins next Saturday when the Soldiers of Troy line up against Coach "Fox" Stanton's Caltek gridders at Bovard field. Although the most ardent rooters of the Pasadena school eleven do not even predict a close contest, nevertheless the afternoon's fiasco will serve toward giving critics a line on the comparative strength of the squads.

At this writing it looks as though "Gloomy Gus" should emerge victor by a margin of from 50 to 100 points. Maybe he will smile then, huh?

Bears Not So Good

The reports of Saturday's University of California Varsity-Alumni game in Berkeley should be nothing but encouraging for those who are looking forward to a Cardinal and Gold triumph over the erstwhile Golden Bear some five weeks hence. Being the first game of the season for Andy Smith's reconstructed machine too much could not be expected, but their showing in turning back the Alumni by a 3 to 0 score was not nearly as impressive as northern scribes and critics had hoped for. From this early date it appears as though the Bears and Trojans will line up for the referee's whistle on a 50-50 basis as far as betting is concerned.

Athletics Win Game From Washington Cubs

The Glendale Athletics fattened their average for the season yesterday when they defeated the fast Washington Cubs in the game at Happyland Park, by a score of 5 to 3.

The game started with Morgan in the box and Faultner on the receiving end, Har is playing center and Bradbury on the bench. Morgan struck out the first seven visiting batters, and at the end of the seventh his record showed that he had allowed only three hits and one run. A new battery, consisting of Bradbury and Schreider, was sent in at the opening of the eighth. Bradbury allowed the visitors to nick his delivery for two runs, but he tightened up and struck out three men in the ninth.

Slim Harris, the reserve pitcher, won a hand when he went up in the air after a fly, getting the ball away to Kingsley at first in time to catch the runner out.

The Athletics are very pleased with the way their boys have been going, and plans are under way to organize basketball, handball, golf and swimming teams.

Mystic Smilers Beat Burbank Basketeers

The Glendale Mystic Smile team won the first basketball victory of the season last Friday, when they defeated the Grand Lodge at Burbank by a score of 17 to 11.

Coach Nelson Dick declares he is confident that this will be only the first of a series of victories for the Glendale team. Regular practice begins at the high school gymnasium Tuesday night, September 25, at 7:30 o'clock.

Cities, Counties, Must Pay for Text Books

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 24.—As a result of the refusal of Mrs. Nellie Brewer Pierce, Governor Richardson's budget-maker, to provide funds for new text books for the schools, Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, announced today that local communities will be forced to raise nearly $200,000 to buy books.

The transfer of the text-book burden from the state to the counties and cities has resulted in scores of protests being filed with his office, said Wood.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Sept. 24.—As the result of a discovery reported by Dr. J. J. Armstrong of this city, Arizona now boasts of three natural bridges. The newly discovered one is located near Sugar Loaf mountain in Cochise county, in the rugged mountain wilderness known as Rhyolite park. The span of the bridge is forty-five feet long, eight feet wide and seven feet thick at the apex of the arch.

KELLER DANCING SCHOOL OPENS

Reception Held Saturday to Observe Ten Years of Success Here

The opening Saturday afternoon of Miss Pearl Keller's school of dancing in its new location at 140-A North Brand boulevard was a brilliant affair, hundreds of children and their mothers thronging the large ballroom, tastefully decorated in grey with blue velour and net draperies.

The event was doubly significant in that it not only celebrated Miss Keller's removal from the hall at 109-A North Brand boulevard, but signalized the commencement of her tenth successive season in Glendale.

Miss Keller, charming in a gown of mauve and gold taffeta ruffled down the front with lace, received hosts of former pupils and scores of new ones. Her fall season will start Friday, September 28, with seven classes for children under her personal instruction.

These classes are babies, beginners, intermediate, advanced, second advanced, ballet and a special class for boys only. In addition, Miss Keller will give private instruction in both dancing and dramatics.

Mary Grace Egley, who was with the Pearl Keller School of Dancing and Dramatic Art last season, is announced in charge of classes for adults, high school students and children, while Cora Louise Brown is retained as Miss Keller's secretary.

A feature of Saturday's opening was the presence of A. M. Kelly's Shrine Club Orchestra, which furnished the music for a charming program with the following numbers:

Numbers On Program

Elizabeth Turner, Tango, and buck and wing dance; Beatrice Turner, Spanish dance; Cecilia Mae Fisher, Russian dance; Katherine Sonntag, Oriental dance; Katherine Jane Bruner, recitations; Eleanor Marek, patriotic dance; Marie Louise Brown, powder puff dance; Julia Pelley, siren of the South Seas; Nellie Aleshire, Dance of the Red Rose; Elizabeth Hoffman, Cupid; Geraldine Keleher, Coquette.

Miss Keller's Saturday class, comprising pupils who have been with her from three to seven years, presented their teacher with a charming basket of flowers, which was one of many beautiful floral tributes received.

There's one Glendale family mighty glad they're living here and not in Berkeley, and that is the Robert Creyks of 1129 East Colorado street. Last May they sold their home in Berkeley and moved to Glendale. Today they received word that the property was swept completely clean in the recent conflagration.

Mr. and Mrs. Creyk sold their former residence to a Mr. and Mrs. E. George, who write to say that they were away from home when the fire started, arriving just in time to see the roof fall.

At the risk of their lives they dashed into the flaming house and salvaged a few valuables and articles of clothing. These they brought out and placed in their auto. Imagine their consternation, then, when this presently took fire likewise, consuming all they had saved at such risk!

Mr. Creyk, who was president of the British Overseas club of Berkeley and well acquainted there, says a large number of his friends lost everything but the clothes they had on.

Deaths in Trail of Rioting in Germany

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Riots and violent death were reported from various quarters of Germany today. Five persons were killed and eleven wounded in fighting between police and communists near Wiederitsch.

Six workers and two policemen were seriously wounded in a clash at Gleiwitz.

At Lorrach unemployed men overpowered police and locked them up in the town hall. Police reinforcements later liberated them.

One person was killed and many wounded in violent riots that raged in Dresden. Mounted police were overpowered when they tried to restore order. Later they gained the upper hand.

Alarming reports are coming out of Bavaria. General belief is that Bavaria is on the threshold of action and is only awaiting Chancellor Stresemann's answer to France as a signal.

License to Wed Leads to Arrest for Murder

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—Charged with complicity in the alleged brutal murder of a rich Oklahoma oil operator named Knight, near Phoenix, Ariz., in 1921, young and pretty Mrs. Esther Lee Fulton was held in the county jail here today following her arrest by Arizona and local officers at Whittier, fourteen miles from here. The girl, 21 years old, is to be returned to Phoenix to face murder charges standing against her and her brother, Tom Tunstall, and two other men, the officers said.

A marriage license issued at Santa Ana, July 23, when the accused woman was married to H. R. Fulton, a Whittier oil field worker, enabled the officers to find her after several months' search.

Sun Power to Furnish Energy, Says Steinmetz

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—The possibility that development of a new kind of plant will afford a means of developing energy direct from the sun was suggested here today by Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, famous electrical engineer.

"Sun power eventually will have to be used," he declared, after coal is gone and water power becomes inadequate. The electrical engineer said at present there is no economically possible method of utilizing sun power and added that a new way will have to be discovered. This he suggested might be through development of new kinds of plants which grow so rapidly that in their growth there will be economy in the storage of sunlight.

Bride Protests About Sleeping in Bathtub

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 24.—Believing that the bathtub is not the proper place for a 19-year-old girl bride to sleep, and especially in the dead of winter when the north wind whistles through cracks and icicles hang from roof tops, Mrs. Helen F. O'Connor, of this city, has entered suit for divorce against her husband, Francis O'Connor, charging him with cruel treatment and habitual drunkenness, along with non-support.

After months of unhappiness and ill-treatment the pretty, brown-eyed girl says that her troubles reached a climax and that the chill crept into her heart and stifled the love that was there for her husband the night she was forced to flee into the bath room, pillow her head on a towel, and rest her shuddering body on the cold galvanized tub to escape her intoxicated husband's threats.

Cincinnatus Freed On Parking Charge

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24.—Cincinnatus was tried in police court here and found not guilty of parking too long in one place. But the strangest part of the proceeding was that he conducted his own trial. Horace Williamson, dressed in Roman toga, sandals, headdress and all, appeared to answer the charge. He explained that he had been designated to act as Cincinnatus in the fall festival, and that it was while serving in that capacity that he was arrested, and that it was only fair, therefore, that he appear as such in court.

Invited to conduct his own trial by the judge, Cincinnatus did so, and said that he probably had parked too long. He failed, however, to sentence himself, whereupon Judge Woeste resumed the bench and pronounced him "not guilty."

O. K. to Laugh When Brick Hits Officer

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—The principle that is is perfectly all right, under the constitution, Magna Charta and Declaration of Independence, to laugh when someone pops a constable with a brick has been upheld in the Chicago Criminal Court.

Charles Bethke, of Donton, Ill., opened his mouth and laughed right out loud when he saw someone heave a brick at the town watchdog. A country justice of the peace fined him $10 and costs for his mirth. The fine was reversed when Bethke appealed.

State to Grow More Walnuts, Is Predicted

Carlyle Thorpe, general manager of the California Walnut Growers association in his annual report predicted recently that within the next five years California will produce nearly one hundred million pounds of walnuts or almost the entire consumption of the United States.

He stated that California now has more han one hundred thousand acres of walnut groves and this number is being increased on the average of about six thousand acres a year. He also showed that the yield had doubled in the last five years.

Petaluma May Lose Laurels to Waupaca

WAUPACA, Wis., Sept. 24. — This town is now rated as one of the greatest of egg shipping centers of the Northwest. One dealer is said to ship approximately a third of a million eggs weekly. The money paid producers by this single shipper is said to total more than $5000 a week during the summer months, when eggs are cheapest.

Landslide Puts Lovers Lane Out of Business

ATHENS, Ohio, Sept. 24. — Weeks of heavy rainfall resulted in the slipping of a large section of a hillside on the state hospital grounds here. The dirt covered a road leading to "Lovers' Lane". Thousands of tons of debris must be removed before the road can be re-opened.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR FINANCE COMPANY GETS CHARTER

TRAGEDY, HUMOR OVERLAPPED IN BERKELEY'S FIRE

Student Relates Incident That Moved to Tears And Laughter

By J. EVERT SMITS
Written for The Evening News

As I fought the advance of that roaring line of fire that so nearly wiped out the entire city of Berkeley last Monday, along with several thousand other college men, I had ample opportunity to observe many pathetic incidents and others that even take on a humorous aspect now that the tragedy of the affair has been lessened by the report of "No lives lost."

In one house which we entered an elderly lady was found concealing papers under the living room rug, and when asked if they were valuable and should be saved she answered hysterically: "No, no. Do not touch them. They belong to my husband and must not be removed." As the house was already on fire the half crazed woman was led out into the street, placed in a passing car, and the papers tied up in a pillow-slip and thrown in after her.

Hunting Lost Cat

Another woman who was stopped while trying to enter a flaming house pleaded, with tears streaming down her face, to be allowed to go into the furnace that had been her home to see if she could find her cat.

In still another home a foreigner was standing at the phone trying to get a transfer company to send a moving van to his house so that he could get his furniture out, and as he was talking the roof above his head was burning furiously. Within five minutes the entire building was a smouldering heap of ashes.

On one of the busiest corners a woman stood hopelessly watching the crowd pour by her, clasping in both hands a gilded bird cage, on the floor of which lay a dead canary overcome by the smoke.

On a vacant lot a small boy was proudly exhibiting to onlookers the little pile of belongings that he and his mother had saved, when a glowing ember, carried by the gale, fell on a bundle of clothing which lay beside him, and all that they had rescued went up in smoke, while the lad was forced to flee for his life.

Carries Aged Bulldog

Down a side street comes a little man staggering under the weight of a huge mirror. Little does he realize that the face of the glass is cracked from end to end. Following close behind him is a tiny girl carrying an aged bulldog, almost as big as herself. A woman hurries from a nearby house with a huge potted plant in her arms and joins the queer procession. And thus it was that the crowds of refugees trickled out of the fire district, each carrying with him what he considered his most valuable possession.

Late that night as some of us, who had gone into the mountains to fight the fire which had circled and was threatening from another direction, returned to the city we heard, rising from the middle of the burned area, the notes of one of the latest jazz tunes, thumped out by practised fingers. There in the middle of the devastated district, at the keyboard of a piano which by some trick of fate remained untouched in the street, some irresponsible was playing music that at any other time would have made the listener long for a dance floor.

On the campus today every student has his little list of incidents such as these that he recounts to anyone that will listen to him, and the one greeting between friends who have not met since the fire is, "Did you get burned out?" And if he who is questioned is one

Social and Cultural Plans Of Tuesday Afternoon Club Revealed by Its Program

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff

HERALDING the opening of club activities Tuesday, October 2, programs for the Tuesday Afternoon club for the months of October, November and December are being mailed club members this week and they give a comprehensive outline of the cultural and social affairs planned for the coming three months.

Happily located in their new home, the club women are to broaden every activity of club life during the coming year. New committees and sections have been formed, more money has been delegated for use on programs and the year's book, a paid secretary-hostess receives at the clubhouse every day, a professional caterer has been secured for the semi-monthly luncheons and the club will meet weekly, on every Tuesday. Cooked food sales will be held the second and fourth Tuesdays.

Two Luncheons Monthly

Luncheon is to be served at 12:30 o'clock on the first and third Tuesdays. There will be special speakers during the luncheon hour and the regular club business meeting and program will follow. On the second and fourth and fifth Tuesdays just a regular club business meeting and program will be held. Before each second and fourth Tuesday meetings Gage Christopher of Los Angeles, will direct community singing.

The first club meeting of the year, Tuesday, October 2, is the annual "Presidents' Day." A luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock and the luncheon speakers will be Mrs. John C. Urquhart, state president; and Mrs. John W. Shenk, district chairman of the department of American citizenship, who will speak on "Our Duty as American Citizens."

Lists Social Events

Fall social events noted on the programs just being mailed out are the Hallowe'en party, Tuesday night October 30, with a dinner for 250 at the clubhouse and dancing, cards, and musical entertainment in foothill homes of club members; and the big society circus at the clubhouse Friday and Saturday, November 16 and 17. Both are being planned by the ways and means committee, with Mrs. A. H. Montgomery as chairman.

The neatly compiled program leaflets also announce that Kooverji L. Lellani, well known artist mystic, recently of Bombay, India, will give an exhibit of Indian and Hawaiian paintings at the clubhouse during the month of October. Mr. Lellani is a disciple of the philosophy under the great Rabindranath Tagore, and is to give a lecture on "Art Appreciation" to the fine art section of the club Tuesday, October 2, at 10:30 o'clock.

Most interesting regular programs are outlines. The year will open with a presentation by ten members of the Matinee Musical club of Los Angeles, of "Lullabies, Songs and Dances of the Nations." This historical pageant was arranged by Mrs. J. H. Ballagh, founder of the Matinee Musical club, who now resides at 308 North Louise street, and is now a member of the Tuesday Afternoon club. Mrs. Ballagh states that Janeski Robenoff, master of the Russian ballet, who appeared at a large social affair she gave Saturday night, will appear on the club program.

Talks About China

"The Melodrama of China" is to be presented to the club women at the second meeting in October by Upton Close (Josef W. Hall). Mr. Close has made a study both from real life and documents of the institutions, political evolution and psychology of the Chinese.

Runaway Roller Rips Up 5 Trees in Wild Flight

STEAM rollers seldom take occasion to run away, but when they do—

Well, the results of a runaway are visible today on North Pacific avenue near Glenwood road. Ten tons of steel became uncontrollable Sunday morning when the steering apparatus froze on the roller.

The driver, name unknown, jumped, and the machine went plunging across the street curb, ripping out five full-grown olive trees and wrapping them like a mantle around the works.

And then, tiring of its carousal, the truck rolled over in the field and went to sleep, where it will take a day or more to get up and going.

Wesley Kuhnle on Way Home From Europe

Friends of Wesley Kuhnle, young Glendale musician, will be glad to learn that he is crossing the Atlantic on his way home after six months' study abroad, and arrives in New York today. According to his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Kuhnle of 111 West Maple street, he will remain in New York and eastern cities for an indefinite stay and then return to Glendale to re-open his studio.

In writing of his experiences abroad Mr. Kuhnle tells of many fine concerts as well as good work by boy choirs of Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's cathedral in London. He was the guest at the palatial home of John Hooke of Croydon, England and during his visit many affairs were given in his honor.

While in Berlin he presented piano numbers at gatherings at the home of Mrs. Eugene Schweitzer and her son Dr. Ernst Schweitzer and at the Berlin home of the well known banker Mendelssohn, close relative of the composer.

Man's Value Based on Ability to Serve

Dr. H. C. Funk was greeted by the congregation of the First Lutheran church, which met yesterday morning in the hall of the Chamber of Commerce building at 150 South Brand boulevard, upon his return from the annual synodical meeting at San Francisco.

In discussing the subject, "The Value of a Man," he declared that extravagance and luxury have undermined the ideals of many young men.

"The estimate of a man's value is commonly based on the size of his salary," he remarked. "He is measured in terms of dollars and cents.

"The real value of a man, however, is determined not by what he gets but by what he gives. It is based upon his ability and willingness to serve.

"Alas, that so many should try to see how much they can get and then render the least possible service in return. They greatly err, who suppose that the most successful man is the one who gets the most and does the least."

Community Chest to Be Organized Tonight

W. E. Hewitt, who was appointed by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce to aid in the organization of a Community Chest committee, has called a meeting for 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, 150 South Brand boulevard, when representatives of the various civic organizations interested in the project will attend to perfect the organization that is to have charge of the work.

PATIENT IMPROVES

Mrs. A. D. Campbell, 315 Burchett street, who has been in a private hospital in Los Angeles for the past week on account of heart trouble, returned to her home in Glendale Saturday, showing marked improvement in her condition. Mrs. Campbell and her medical advisers believe that the quiet of Glendale will have a decided influence in hastening her recovery.

True sympathy that you would shown is proven by your act. Good judgment used by knowing how to exercise good tact.

PRESBYTERIANS TO USE GLENDALE THEATRE 5 WEEKS

Church Building Committee Sees Progress Made on New Edifice

The building committee Saturday afternoon inspected the construction progress of the Presbyterian church, the work being rushed to completion now.

Rev. W. E. Edmonds, pastor of the church, called attention today to the fact that plans have been made to move out of the building on the northwest corner of Cedar street and Broadway week after next so that possession can be taken by its new owner, the Broadway Methodist Church South. He stated that the Sunday school will be moved into its new quarters at once, but that morning church services will be held in the Glendale theatre for about five weeks, commencing October 7.

Plan Dedication

Dedicatory services for the new house of worship, which is the largest and most pretentious in this community, will be held November 18. Rev. George R. Snively of Lewistown, Ill., will be the speaker on that occasion. The complete program has not been arranged.

Besides the pastor, other members of the building committee are: H. L. Finlay of 501 Pioneer drive, W. J. Clendenin of 606 South Central avenue, R. P. Isitt of 509 North Maryland avenue and L. A. Hart of 321 North Isabel street. All were pleased to note that the construction work is up to schedule.

Installing Windows

The Jenson Art Glass Company of Los Angeles has installed most of the windows in the Sunday school building already. The three large windows for the church, which are twenty feet by twenty-eight feet in dimensions, and the ten rectangular windows for the church, which are four feet wide and twenty-two feet high, are ready and will be installed as soon as possible.

Plastering the auditorium is now about half finished. Contractor William Keen of 1446 Thompson street expects to have this work finished in about two weeks.

Rogers Una-Drive Truck Put Through Its Tricks

The demonstration of the Rogers Una-Drive truck, that was announced for Saturday at the corner of South Brand boulevard and Harvard street, was staged as scheduled in the presence of a large number of interested spectators, who watched the big three ton truck being put through its paces.

The truck was driven up a high curb, one and two wheels at a time, and backed down again easily and lightly, showing the control exercised by the powerful brakes, which have a braking surface of 780 square inches, as contrasted with a much smaller braking surface in other trucks of the same size.

Among the features that were emphasized by Oscar G. Briggs, the lecturer, were the Rogers steering ball joint, the double reduction axles in front and rear, the positive self-locking differentials that insure an even pull on every wheel under all conditions, and the double water-cooled transmission.

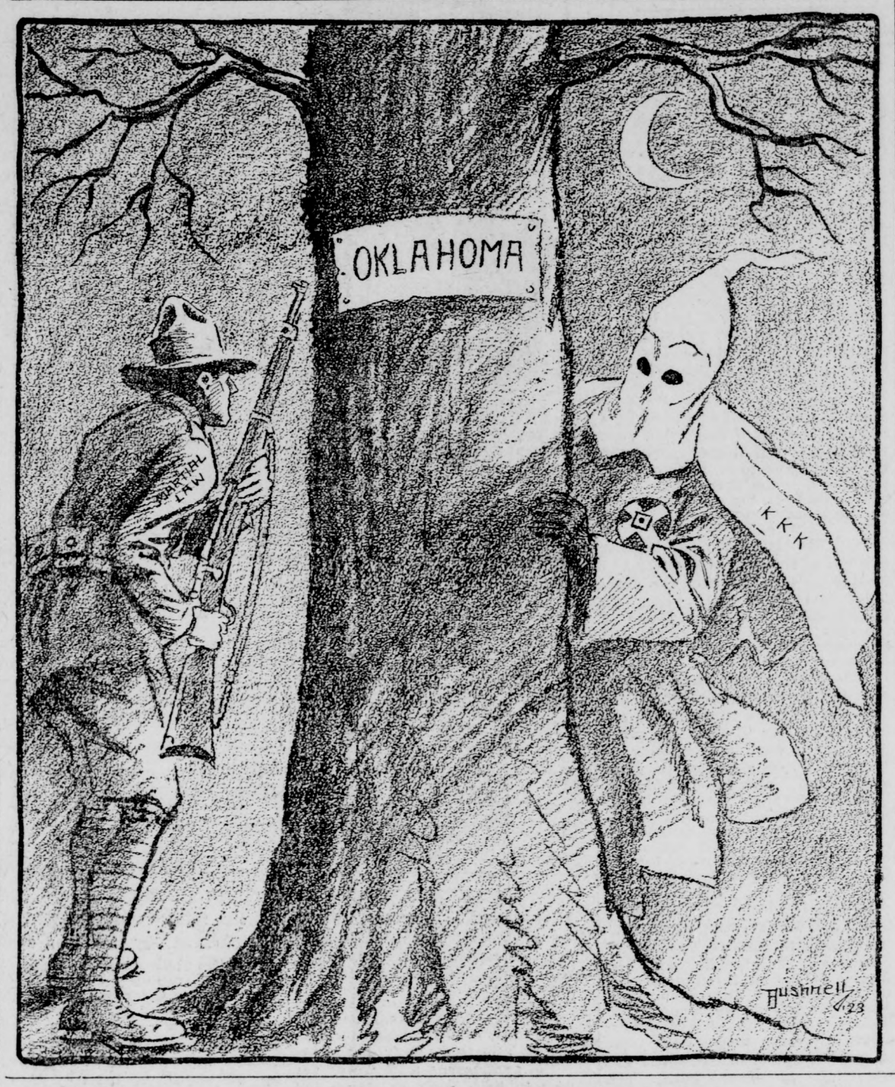
Another improvement that is to be embodied in the truck when its manufacture starts in the new Glendale factory to be erected at the corner of San Fernando road and Colorado street, is the self-slinging underslung springs which will relieve the springs and frame of all stress and strains. A system of separate additional spring suspension for the radiator, engine, primary transmission and cab will also be included in the new models.

Postal Employes Hold Monte Vista Picnic

The members of the Glendale postoffice staff who attended the picnic at Monte Vista park, Sunland, yesterday, had such a good time and cheered one another and themselves so heartily that most of them are unable to speak above a whisper this morning. However, they are able to convey the news that the picnic was a howling success, in more ways than one.

A team of clerks and carriers staged a ball game that went for six innings and that was productive of so many runs that the scorekeepers lost count early in the game. The same two divisions broke even in a tug of war, and another tug of war between the women employes of the office and a team drawn from among the wives of the men employes was also declared a draw after each side had won one struggle. Other events were: races, a band contest by the postoffice band, and a pie eating contest, in which Eugene Nicholson, 815 East Orange Grove, covered himself with glory and blackberry pie by winning easily.

"HIDE AND SEEK"



Mexico Is Keynote of C. of C. Entertainment

The recent invasion of Mexico by the recognition excursion under the auspices of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce will be related from various angles in the auditorium of Glendale Union High school on East Harvard street tomorrow night, Tuesday September 25, when the Glendale members of the party will appear at an entertainment that is being staged by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce as a part of the Community Service plan by which a number of the local organizations are to present a program at intervals during the fall and winter months.

The Glendalians who are scheduled to appear are Mayor Spencer Robinson, Contractor Peter L. Ferry, Herman Nelson, manager of the Glendale Avenue branch of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank, and Dr. Jessie A. Russell, realtor. Charles B. Guthrie, 110 West Broadway, who recently made a trip to northern Mexico, has also been asked to appear on the program.

In addition to the speakers, there will be a number of vocal and instrumental selections, in which the music of Mexico will predominate.

The public is invited to attend the entertainment, which will be free of charge.

Harding Memorial by Knights Templar Here

Dr. Roy V. Hogue, eminent commander of Glendale commandery No. 53, Knights Templar, announces that memorial services for the late Warren G. Harding will be held at the Masonic temple here this evening, the Knights and their friends being invited to attend. A patriotic program has been arranged in honor of the deceased president and eulogy fitting his honor and rank will be read under orders of the grand encampment.

One Mile of Pennies for School Cafeteria

YUBA CITY (Sutter Co.), Sept. 24.—In the effort to secure funds for the completion of a cafeteria building, the Yuba City Parent-Teacher Association has decided to collect "one mile of pennies."

Each person interested will be given "one foot" to cover with pennies. A local mathematician estimated that "a mile of pennies" will total about fifty dollars.

Blood Peaches, New Variety, Developed

COLUSA, Sept. 24.—Blood peaches, a new variety, have been developed here by P. V. Berkey.

The peaches are of dusty color on the outside and are almost blood-red clear to the seed. They are of remarkable flavor, have small seeds, and are in every way different from the ordinary peach.

CANTOR'S SINGING SHOWS ARTISTRY

Brilliant Performers Support Glendale Tenor in His Farewell Recital

Henry Cantor, the well-known operatic tenor, appeared in a farewell recital in the auditorium of the Tuesday Afternoon club on Saturday night, giving his concert under the auspices of the ways and means section of the club, of which Mrs. A. H. Montgomery is chairman.

In this, the first of the series of concerts planned by the club for the present season in which noted artists will be heard, Mr. Cantor was supported by Madame Jadwiga Zebrowska, the famous Polish soprano; Miss Iva Hanners, the well-known American lyric soprano; Harry Nielsen, at the piano, and Madame Felicia Romanowska, accompaniste.

Demand Encores

The numbers on the program were rendered in a manner that displayed to advantage the consummate artistry of every member of the company and that won the enthusiastic and insistent applause of the audience, encores to almost every selection being demanded by the music lovers present.

The program as originally drawn up was changed by the addition of a duet from Cavalleria Rusticana, in which Mr. Cantor and Madame Zebrowska appeared to advantage. Mr. Cantor's presentation of "Vesti la Giubba" from Pagliacci, in costume, and the "Miserere" from Il Trovatore, in the latter of which he was assisted by Miss Iva Hanners, were exceptionally well received.

Mr. Cantor is to appear in the leading tenor role in "Rigoletto" at Ocean Park on Saturday, September 29.

Leaky Connection Prevents Explosion

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson of Melrose avenue were startled at an early hour Sunday morning when they were called by next-door neighbors, with warning that something seemed to be on fire within the house.

The first thing that attracted attention was a geyser of steam, outside and quite near the house, making a noise similar to the sound from an exhaust on an engine. Steam also issued from the vent-pipe through the chimney. It proved to be steam from the hot water heater that had been lighted the night before and accidentally left burning through the night.

The steam in the yard came from the bursting of a connection, allowing the release of enough pressure to prevent the explosion of the boiler, which might have been a more serious occurrence.

Influx of Strangers From All Parts Seen

The influx of strangers in the very noticable in the enrollment in all grades in the city schools. At Wilson avenue intermediate an incomplete list of newcomers in the eighth grade alone includes pupils from various points of the country.

Among these are Mary Ann Fleming of Kittanning, Pa.; Madeline Ruth Finkheimer of Swissvale, Pa.; Audrey Drake of Andrews, Wis.; Catherine Estelle Davis of Kennewick, Wash.; Philip Morton of Ogden, Utah; Garland Cole, of Shawnee, Okla.; Billy Burns of Oakland, Calif.; Lucille Light of Liberal, Kansas.

Robert Burns of Oakland and Caryl Light of Liberal, Kan., are enrolled in the seventh grade.

POSTPONE MEETING

The regular weekly meeting of the directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce has been postponed for a week on account of the entertainment that the organization is staging tomorrow night at the Glendale Union High school.

A. L. BAIRD HEADS MORTGAGE FIRM ORGANIZED HERE

Max Green and J. F. Lilly to Actively Direct Loan Business

Indicative of the growing financial importance of Glendale, and of the metropolitan requirements of the community, is the recent organization of a strong financial institution to handle mortgages and other loans. With an authorized capital of a half million dollars, the Valley Mortgage and Finance Company was incorporated, with an able directorate of local men, whose names are widely and favorably known in this community.

The purpose of the company is to handle much business that at present is going to Los Angeles, as well as to take care of the growing need locally for money to finance Glendale's requirements. The projectors state that their original intention was to confine the business largely to the financing of automobile contracts, but on investigation they discovered there was a much wider field of usefulness for such an institution.

Receive Charter

To safeguard the project and secure the co-operation needed, it was decided to incorporate under the laws of California, a charter having just been received. The company is authorized to deal in the same class of securities now handled by banks, but, unlike banks, will not deal in unsecured paper or paper backed merely by the signatures of the borrower and his guarantors.

Heading the new organization is A. L. Baird, whose activity in Glendale during recent years is so well known. Mr. Baird first came into public notice when he undertook and successfully carried out the financing of the Glendale Research hospital. This work was undertaken at a time when it was far more difficult to interest investors in such undertakings.

Later Mr. Baird became interested in local realty and has shown his faith in Glendale by large investments in business and other property. Three years ago he became manager of the realty and insurance department of the R. L. Kent company, again demonstrating his ability as a business builder.

Serves as Adviser

Mr. Baird will remain in active charge of his present line of business, but will serve the new organization in an advisory capacity, and will be equally interested financially wtih the other officers of the new company.

Max L. Green, general manager and vice-president of the new company, has been here longer than any of his associates. Oldtimers in the La Canada valley, where Mr. Green spent his youth and early manhood, will credit him with being a hustler. Mr. Green has been closely associated with the automobile industry for the past several years, representing the Ford as distributor for some years in La Canada, and the Oakland in Glendale and San Fernando valley in later years. TODAY—Lloyd George Spurns Fortune; Renovate Ten Downing Street; London Now "Pleasure Resort."

By F. A. WRAY
For International News Service

LONDON, Sept. 24.—When ex-Premier Lloyd George sails for New York from Southampton aboard the Mauretania on September 29 it will be with the knowledge that for the second time since the war he has refused a fortune.

One hundred thousand dollars was the figure offered him by a lecture agency for a series of "talks" during his American trip. But Lloyd George, partly because he wants a real sightseeing and pleasure trip and partly because he is apprehensive of the effects of a lecture tour upon his throat, has turned down the offer and will pay his own expenses.

Two years ago he did a similar thing. When he was considering writing a book on the Great War he was offered half a million dollars for the world rights. With a fine, almost quixotic gesture the ex-premier—a comparatively poor man—refused to touch a cent of the money.

When Lloyd George left Downing street last October, after seventeen years of office, he was almost without resources. Since then he has supported himself almost entirely by his newspaper articles.

His party will consist of Mrs. Lloyd George, their daughter, Megan, and one secretary. They will travel first to Canada and then tour the United States. Lloyd George has been deluged with invitations to deliver speeches, but it is unlikely he will address more than half a dozen gatherings during his two months' stay.

Premier Baldwin's vacation away from 10 Downing street has not been altogether a voluntary one. The real fact is that, for the first time since it was built over 200 years ago, the dingy exterior of this unprepossessing building is being renovated.

The first part of this process consists of chiseling out old mortar between the bricks, which caused continuous showers of dust and made the place practically uninhabitable. The British prime minister is a patient soul, but this was too much for him, so he gathered together his belongings and fled.

Every few years there is a strong movement in England to have the dingy old structure which serves as a residence for the British prime minister entirely demolished and an appropriate thing erected in its place. But always the lovers of tradition close their ranks and raise such an outcry that the project is dropped like a piece of hot iron.

Consequently, Mr. Baldwin and his successors are doomed to live in the most gloomy, inconvenient, unsuitable old house that the wit of man could devise—all because other famous men have lived in it before. And so if they wish even to give a small dinner party the food will have to be sent in from outside, because there is no modern equipment for cooking except on the most modest scale.

With American visitors leaving London at the rate of over 10,000 weekly, an invasion from the provinces is now in full swing. In fact, London is becoming one of the chief British pleasure resorts, and seashore places are suffering in consequence.

It is a feature of North of England life for towns to save up for a whole year and then for the entire community to close down the place for a week and embark on a "wakes" or vacation to some chosen spot. As a rule, Blackpool, England's "Coney Island," is the favored locality, where the Lancashire cotton operators will spend two or three hundred dollars in seven days; but this year, for the first time, London has been selected.

During the last week in August over 30,000 hard-working citizens from Oldham, one of the busiest towns of the north, came by special trains to London, among them being 350 honeymoon couples. For a week the strong Lancashire accent was heard everywhere, and the visitors departed so satisfied that other towns are following in their path. The "Brighter London" movement has evidently not been without result.

Waite Hoyt, Yankee pitcher, may object to orders from Miller Huggins, now and then, but he takes a "bawl out" from Master Harry Hoyt, aged 5 weeks, without a murmur. After talking the matter over thoroughly with his dad, Harry has decided on a pitching career.

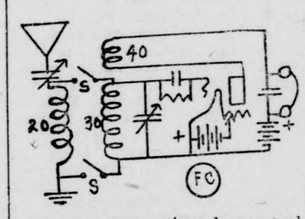
MAKING A THREE-CIRCUIT SET SIMPLE

It is natural for anyone to want their set to work as easily and simply as possible. I prefer my three-circuit spider web set to any I have ever used, but even at that I have rigged it up to work simple by converting it to a single circuit regenerative set by connecting the primary and secondary coils in parallel and having a single knife switch in both leads as shown in the drawing.

To shift from the select three-circuit set, all that is necessary to do is to throw both switches down and take out the primary coil. You can readily see it is the standard single circuit set with a variable condenser in series and one in shunt to the coil. Using these two condensers, tuning it fairly sharp and fairly good work can be done through moderate interference.

When interference gets so that it annoys you, merely plug in your primary coil again and open both switches. You then have the three-circuit spider web or honeycomb coil set.

It is much easier to find stations when using this set as a single circuit, and for this reason it will appeal to beginners in radio or those who do not care to have to turn so many knobs and dials.



If you are using honeycomb coils or others that may be plugged in, you can cover quite a band of wave lengths by using the primary coil in place of the secondary, either by taking out the secondary and leaving the primary in or by putting the primary in the secondary plugs.

If you haven't larger coils and desire to tune higher, fixed condensers may be connected across the variable condensers with good results.

In the set I have in mind the primary coil has twenty turns, the secondary thirty turns and the tickler forty turns. The two variable condensers are of the balanced twenty-six-plate type (thirteen on each side). Fixed condensers of .0005 are used to shunt across them. KDKA on 326 meters is received, using the primary coil with the series condenser at ninety-eight and the shunt condenser at sixty-four, the fixed condensers not being used. On 360-meter stations using the small coil, the series condenser at 100 and shunted by the fixed condenser, the shunt condenser set at fifty with the fixed condenser across it. Or the regular secondary coil was used with the series condenser at 0 and with the fixed condenser in, while the shunt condenser was set at twenty-two. The 380-meter stations such as WGY used the secondary coil series condenser at 0 with the fixed one around it and the shunt condenser set at thirty-four without the fixed condenser. The 509-meter stations are received with the secondary coil, the series condenser at 0 shunted by the fixed one and the secondary condenser set at ninety-two; if the fixed condenser was placed around it the variable condenser was turned back to fifty-five. Other wave lengths could be tuned in accordingly. Ships on 600 meters can be copied by using large values of both condensers.

Instead of using larger values of condensers it would be better to use larger coils for the various wave lengths from 360 to 546, and use smaller variable condensers, but one doesn't like to be plugging coils in and out for the various wave lengths. The coils in use will allow tuning to the good broadcasting stations and still keep you above the amateur wave lengths.

When using it as a three-circuit set amateurs are never heard, but when used as a single circuit they come in occasionally and disturb things, but that is the fault of the set and not that the amateur is abroad.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY'S POTATO —

"Well, Nurse Jane, here they are!" called Uncle Wiggily one day, as he skipped up the stoop of the hollow stump bungalow.

"Goodness me, sakes alive! Who is here?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Have you brought company home to supper?"

"Oh, no!" laughed the bunny rabbit gentleman, "I have only brought home some potatoes—here they are," and he dropped a bag down on the steps.

"Potatoes!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "Why, I didn't need any potatoes, Uncle Wiggily. We have plenty of potatoes in the old potato box."

"Yes, I know," gaily chuckled Mr. Longears. "These potatoes are some I bought for myself. I am going to have a potato roast, Nurse Jane. I'm going off in the fields and roast potatoes. Then I'm going to put salt and butter on them and have a fine picnic!"

"It sounds good," said Nurse Jane, slowly.

"The potatoes will taste much better," laughed the bunny. "Better come along to my potato roast, Janie!"

"I will!" decided Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. And then some little voices calling from under the bushes asked:

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily, may we come to your potato roast?"

"Yes! Yes! Come along!" invited the kind rabbit gentleman.

"Hadn't you better wait first and see if this isn't the Fuzzy Fox or the Woozie Wolf?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Nonsense! I know those voices! They're some of my animal boys and girls!" said Mr. Longears.

Surely enough it was. Sammie and Susie Littletail, the rabbits, came skipping out from beneath the bush and after them came Bobby and Betty Ringtail, the raccoons.

"May we come to your potato roast, Uncle Wiggily" asked the animal children.

"Of course," said the bunny gentleman, and soon he and Nurse Jane, with Sammie and Susie, Bobby and Betty, were going along over the field to a place where they could have a picnic. Uncle Wiggily carried the bag of potatoes.

"Now, I'll build the fire," said Nurse Jane, "for I know all about such things, as I keep the hollow stump bungalow."

"I'll put the potatoes in to roast," said Uncle Wiggily.

"I'll put on the butter," offered Susie.

"I'll put on the salt," offered Betty.

"And we'll eat the roast potatoes!" said Sammie and Bobbie, and how Uncle Wiggily laughed!

Well, after a while, the potatoes were well roasted in the hot embers of the fire, and Uncle Wiggily poked them out with a stick.

"Be careful, now, children, and you, too, Nurse Jane, that you don't burn your paws on the hot potatoes," said the bunny gentleman.

He passed the potatoes around on pieces of white birch bark for plates and on each plate was a little dab of butter and a little hill of salt.

"My! The potato skins are very black!" exclaimed Nurse Jane, looking at her paws.

"Break off the black, burned skin and you'll find the roasted potatoes very white inside," said Uncle Wiggily.

And this was so. Inside the black skins the baked potatoes were white and mealy and as sweet as a nut.

"I've got some black off the potato skins on my paws," said Betty Ringtail, the little raccoon girl, to her brother, after a while. "I'm going down to the brook and wash my paws."

"All right, I'll go with you. My paws are dirty, too," said Bobby.

Raccoons, you know, are very clean. They wash themselves several times a day and then even wash nearly all their food before they eat it. So Bobby and Betty went down to the brook, not far away.

And while they were there, along came the bad old Bob Cat and, creeping softly up behind Uncle Wiggily, who was eating a roast potato, the Bob Cat caught the rabbit gentleman by his ears.

"Now I'm going to nibble you!" howled the Bob Cat.

"Boo! Boo!"

Well, poor Uncle Wiggily didn't know what to do. But just then Bobby and Betty came softly back from having been to the brook to wash their paws. Betty saw the Bob Cat and she whispered to brother:

"Let's take some burned potato skins and blacken up our faces so we look like a bogie man. Then we'll holler 'Boo!' at the Bob Cat and scare him." So Bobby and Betty blackened their clean faces with soot from the burned potato skins. Then they suddenly leaped out from behind a bush and cried:

"Boo! Boo! Double boo!"

"Oh, my goodness! What's this?" howled the Bob Cat. And he was so frightened when he saw the black faces that away he ran, not nibbling Uncle Wiggily's ears at all.

"You were brave little raccoons," said the bunny gentleman, as Bobby and Betty once more washed their faces and paws in the brook.

So, after all, the potato roast was most jolly, and if the shoe lace doesn't tie itself in such a hard knot that even the ice pick can't loosen it, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the sour milk.

Adventures of Billy Whiskers

By Frances Trego Montgomery

Yesterday Button, the black cat, went into the alligator house to look for Nannie.

He walked along the edge of the pens where dozens of little alligators were crawling around in all directions and one on top of the other until there would be three or four in a pile. Then he would come where there would be just one huge crocodile in the pen with a sign painted on the side:

DANGEROUS, BEWARE OF PUTTING FINGERS OR ARMS OVER THE LEDGE!

You see, these old fellows had been known to try to bite off a child's arm as it hung over the pen pointing to the crocodile as he lay apparently asleep.

Crocodiles seem like slow moving creatures, but when a tempting morsel like a plump, bare arm of a child hangs over the pen, they can be quick enough, and with their long jaws that open and shut with lightning rapidity, the arm of a baby might be gone in an instant.

"Gee! I don't like this place. I think I will get out of here as fast as I can, for they might like cats as well as babies," and Button jumped down from the edge of the pens and ran out.

When he reached the street, he saw it was pretty nearly time to go back and see if Billy or Stubby had gotten on the track of Nannie, but as he ran he smelt pancakes. Looking across the Zone avenue, he saw an old black mammy baking them.

"I've got to have them or burst," said Button and over he went, and tried to purr his way into the good graces of the mammy by rubbing up against her legs. But she was no lover of cats, so she boosted him out of her door on her foot and told him to go along and catch some mice if he was hungry; that she had nothing for lazy cats.

When Button found himself so rudely put out, he did not go right away, but sat down and licked his paws and sniffed in the delightful odor of the baking cakes.

"I'll just hang 'round a bit," he said to himself, "and she will either throw out some cold ones, or get to talking to some of her customers and forget to watch her cakes, and then will be my chance."

And, sure enough, the cook soon became interested in something a man was telling her, and forgot all about a nice hot pile of cakes. So Button jumped up on the counter and ate the whole plate of them and was licking the syrup off the plate when the mammy turned and discovered him. She struck at him with her cake turner but he jumped off the counter and ran down the Zone.

(Tomorrow you will hear Stubby's experiences in trying to find Nannie.)

Sunshine Pellets

By Dr. W. F. Thomson

Good health ne'er drank polluted water nor dwelled on polluted ground.

There are three good reasons why we should destroy mosquitoes: Malaria, dengue and yellow fever.

As we reach the equator, where the cocoanut grows, no meat's in the diet, no wool's in the clothes.

A diet of lettuce,
Of spinach and beets,
Is the hot weather diet
The cool fellow eats.

Cistern-bred mosquitoes carry dengue fever and cisterns are prolific sources of cistern-bred mosquitoes.

Let us not forget that our kidneys seldom complain. Functionally, at least, one of them may fail altogether without attracting attention to it.

Tell us, Doctor, what to do
When repentant, full of brew?
Should we quit, or don't you think
We should have just one more drink?

When your feelings are blistered and you can still "saw wood" you'll find your reward growing with the amount of sawdust.

Sermon Excerpts And News Notes From Local Churches

Virtue of Suffering Is Denied by Pastor

"There is no virtue in trouble, sorrow or pain," were the words with which Rev. J. C. Livingston opened his sermon Sunday morning at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church. His text was "After that ye have suffered a while, he will make you perfect, establish, strengthen and settle you."

"Too frequently superficial thinkers seem to busy themselves in supported effort in proving these to be, in all but every form, providential discipline, wholly to the exclusion of the revelation that the Holy Spirit is in the world to lift it out of the chaos of all such enervating influences."

Remedial discipline must first make known to us the reason for the afflicting rod, and then its right to be the administering hand, also where can be the correction unless we know the incriminating fault?

The choir rendered the anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord," and Mrs. W. F. Blaikie sang a soprano solo, "Hold Thou My Hand."

The pastor chose as his theme at the evening service, "To Him That Knoweth to Do Good."

The choir rendered an anthem, "Love Divine," by Porter, with tenor and alto duet parts sung by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cotton, and bass and soprano solo parts by Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Jones.

'True Religion' Topic of Rev. P. K. Kemp

True religion is living close to God. This truism was the basis of the sermon yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

"From the dawn of religious history of the Hebrews," remarked Rev. Philip K. Kemp, "the secret of whatever greatness they achieved was living close to God. We find this nobly exemplified by the life of Samuel, whom Dean Stanley called the last of the judges and the first of the prophets.

"At the time when the people stood at the parting of the ways he called them back to the path of their fathers. They wanted a king and Samuel consented to this very reluctantly, for he felt an earthly leader might take the place of God in the thoughts of the people.

"He could point with telling emphasis to the page of history where, in bold type, was written the record of God's loving care for His people. No matter what they might do, He would never forsake them, for He had been pleased to make them His people.

"This is what we may call the religious interpretation of history. Back of the changing moral ideal and above the din of theological controversy stands this truth: Man can only achieve the heights of the moral and spiritual life by living in constant communion with the unseen."

REV. COLE HOLDS COLLEGE SERVICE

School Anthems Sung at Central Christian Church Here Last Night

What was entitled "A Go Away to College Service" was observed last night at the Central Christian church. A short sermon was preached by Rev. C. A. Cole on the subject of "Christian Education."

The service was attended by a number of students who are matriculating and in attendance at nearby institutions of higher learning. They joined in singing several college songs. The anthem of the evening, "Comes at Times a Stillness," was sung by the choir.

"How to Know the Will of God" was the subject of the sermon yesterday morning.

A duet was sung by Mrs. C. C. Stoler of 1249 Justin street and Mrs. Floyd Mercer of 319 North Jackson street. This was "I Waited For the Lord," by Mendelssohn. Mrs. M. G. Musser of 600 Colorado street is the church accompanist. The morning anthem was "The Lord is My Light," by Horatio W. Parker.

Do As He Would Have

"It should be man's chiefest concern to know what the will of God is for him," asserted Rev. C. A. Cole. "It is my own wish, if I know my heart, to learn what He would have me do.

"There are many instruments by which we may find out something of His will: Reason, experience, need, circumstance, and the welfare and advice of others.

"Henry Drummond called obedience the organ of spiritual knowledge. As the eye is the organ of physical sight; the mind of intellectual sight; so the organ of spiritual sight is this strange power, obedience. This is one of the great discoveries that the Bible has made to the world. Philosophy never conceived a truth so simple and yet so sublime."

GOES TO REDONDO

Justice Harry W. Chase of Burbank township, was in Redondo on Saturday on official business.

'Channels of Blessing' Theme of Rev. Ford

"Channels of Blessing" was the subject of the sermon yesterday morning at the First Baptist church.

The text was taken from the seventh chapter of John: "In the last day, the great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, 'If any man thirst, let Him come unto me and drink. He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his inner life shall flow rivers of living water.'"

Jesus often mentioned water as a metaphor to illustrate the spirit of power, cleansing and refreshing, according to Rev. E. E. Ford.

"We cannot have streams without springs," he remarked, "and springs always overflow and make streams. When the Spirit of God possesses a soul it flows over in gracious ministry.

"Water held in a pool becomes stagnant and miasmatic; running water is pure and life-giving. Nothing is more pitiful than a dry channel—except it be a choked one.

"The text, in simple words, would read like this: 'Lay the main of your life by faith into the Spring of Living Water, Christ Jesus, and your soul shall be satisfied and you shall be a channel through which the Water of Life shall flow to bless others.'"

Knowledge of Christ Aids Growth of Faith

"Christ, Our Ransom" was the theme of the sermon yesterday morning at the Concordia Lutheran Church.

"Beginners in the faith are generally like unto weak children, their strengh no yet exercised and developed," explained Rev. Henry O. Kringle. "But we are not to remain children; we are to grow and to become men strong in the faith and immovable.

"Now to grow in faith we must increase in the knowledge of Jesus Christ in order that we continually learn to know better in whom we believe and on what foundation our reconciliation and salvation rests.

"A tree derives its growth from the soil in which it roots. If the tree is to grow, the roots must spread wider and sink deeper into the soil, otherwise the tree will cease to grow and will soon begin to die.

"Of ourselves we can neither have faith nor grow in it. Our faith must root in Christ who is its author and it will grow only as it strikes deeper root in Him."

Life Is Determined by Man's Own Will

"What is your life?" inquired C. M. Calderwood yesterday morning at the First Congregational Church.

"This much is sure," he continued, "you are free to make it what you will. It is your life. It is largely in your own hands and not wholly in the hands of heredity and environment. Your life is determined largely by your will supplemented by the grace of God.

"We are counselled to work out our own salvation. Do not ask your grandfathers to do it—it is too late. Do not ask your environment to do it—it may not be interested.

"You can make your life a thing of honor or shame; blessing or curse, joy or woe; a center of light or a source of gloom. You can become what you like; believer or unbeliever; theist or antheist. You are free to make life high or low, fine or coarse, full of love or brutality. You can hold back the world's progress or help it along. You can spend your life in self-satisfaction and content or you can assume your larger responsibilities. You can fritter away your life in idleness and frivolities or you can use it in the service of your fellowmen. You can lose your life as easily as you can lose a dollar or you can invest it in a way that will bring in large returns."

The morning solo was sung by Myron Carman of 363 Salem street. It was Mendelssohn's "Lord God of Abraham."

Miss Lilla E. Litch of 424 North Louise street, church organist, played the "Andante from Mendelssohn's Fifth Sonata" as the prelude, "Berceuse" by Dennee as the offertory and "Monolog" by Rheinberger as the postlude.

Special Program of Music at Services

The morning services at the Presbyterian church, Broadway and Cedar street, were marked by a quartet, "Let Mount Zion Rejoice," (Marsh), sung by Miss Elizabeth Mottern, soprano; Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts, contralto; Paul S. Breckenridge, substitute tenor; and Norman W. Welch, bass. Miss Mottern also sang a solo, "I'm a Pilgrim," by Marston.

In the evening the quartet was "Ancient of Days," by Ashford, and the tenor solo, by Mr. Breckenridge, was "O, God, Be Merciful," by Bartlett. Another quartet was rendered at the close of the service, "In the Hush of Evening," by Lorenz.

Wild Larkspur Forms Menace to Livestock

TRINITY CENTER (Trinity Co.), Sept. 24.—A new menace to livestock is causing alarm to cattle men of this section. The new foe of the livestock industry is wild larkspur, which has been found in virtually every part of the county.

The federal forest bureau started a drive to eradicate the plant pest after several head of cattle had died as a result of being poisoned by the vegetable.

VISITING PASTOR

Rev. Clyde Haslett of Pittsburgh, Pa., occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church, Wilson avenue and Louise street, last night.

Aged People Honored at Church Services

An "Old Folks' Service" was held yesterday morning in the Glendale Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Mary A. Phillips of 368 Lexington drive, aged 86, was the oldest lady present, and was presented with a beautiful basket of flowers. H. C. Brown of 607 North Geneva street, aged 91, was the oldest man present.

The sermon subject was "A Beautiful Old Age." The text was "They shall still bring forth fruit in old age."

"Literature is full of songs and happy sayings about the beauty of childhood and youth," asserted Rev. W. E. Edmonds. "But old age has not many songs save those that are set in the minor key. The wise man tells of the decay of the earthly house of man's physical pride and glory. Hence it is well for every man in his prime to remember that that which is now strong in its maturity must soon fade away and die as old age approaches.

"God certainly has blundered in planning the cycle of man's life unless He has made it possible for the aged man or woman to be beautiful and attractive at the sunset epoch of human life. Since it is unthinkable that the all-wise Creator and Ruler has blundered, we are forced to believe that not enough recognition has been given to the value and beauty of old age.

"A courageous old age is always inspiring. It is a sad sight when old folks lose their courage. The world has a large place for the aged man or woman who knows the true meaning of Christian courage.

"The saddest sight in the world is old age with no Christ. Christ with old age is a priceless possession. Your aged parents may not have left you much of this world's good, nevertheless, if you were left a Christian example, you are richer than the richest."

Paul's Career Theme of Bible Students

Rev. Keith L. Brooks of Eagle Rock continued his exposition of the Apostle Paul's career yesterday morning in the council chamber at the city hall before the Men's Bible Class of the Presbyterian church.

"Did you ever think of the moral dignity of the Gospel of Christ? It does not back down for any one however great," said Mr. Brooks. "All are brought down to the same level and all, who are saved, are sinners saved by grace. There is no human greatness in the presence of the Gospel. Because the Gospel can speak in this tone, it lives forever.

"When men cannot prove Christianity a fake, the next best thing is to call its advocates insane. Christ, Himself, was charged with being beside Himself. A servant is not greater than his Lord. Calling the preacher mad does not change the truth nor annul the power of the Gospel.

"Christians are either crazy or the wisest people on earth. If they are crazy, it must be said that they have unspeakable joy, unbounded peace and unlimited hope and every indication that Heaven will be their lunatic asylum."

STYLE VARIATIONS

Fashion cleverly varies the straight type for street.

THE SMALL HAT

The small hat is the thing this season.

Faith Subordinated to Reason, Is Claim

"The world is in the throes of an unprecedented unrest," asserted Rev. C. H. Chrisman yesterday morning at the Gospel Tabernacle of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

"This rest is incurable!" he continued. "It is not incurable because there is no remedy but rather because the world refuses to take the remedy.

"The religious unrest proceeds from the highly intellectual trend of the day. Faith has been subordinated to reason. The test now is, not what does God say but what should He be made to say in the light of historical criticism and modern science They tell us that the Cross is not the only way to God. And they have narrowed down the atonement to a point of merely expressing the pity of Jesus for a suffering world.

"First, there is the old path of contrition for sin. We must return to God's estimate of sin. We must see the blasting, blighting, withering character of sin. No dry-eyed repentance will do. We must get back to the old path of genuine sorrow of sin."

Communion Marks End Of Conference Year

The last communion service of the conference year was observed yesterday morning at the Central Avenue Methodist Church. Dr. V. Hunter Brink had as his sermon subject "He Tasted Death for Every Man."

The closing service of the conference year was observed at this church last night with a sermon by the pastor on "The Call of the Church."

GLENDALE A Favored Spot
GLENDALIANS Logical Boosters

Developing naturally from California soil and climate are many unusual products and chief among them is Community Boosting. It seems that every California city and village is conducting a Community Loyalty campaign and this not only in Southern California but also in the north where advantages are neither so numerous nor so well known.

Eureka, until a few years ago without a railroad, took advantage of her location on Humboldt bay and on the famous Redwood highway, and enlisted her citizens in a Community Loyalty campaign with the result that they built and recently opened one of the most beautiful and distinctive hotels in the state.

Ukiah, Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Sebastopol, Napa, St. Helena, Calistoga, Lakeport and many other cities and villages in the north are engaging the citizens in the work of Community growth. Of course all of these places have some advantages and there are people everywhere to whom the spirit of Community Loyalty is natural, yet Glendalians might find it difficult to foster the spirit of Community Pride in some of the places mentioned. We have become so accustomed to unusual advantages that we do not prize them as we should.

The people of Glendale have good reason for civic loyalty. Our city has made such wonderful progress and our future seems so assured. And so it is only natural and logical that Glendalians should be Community boosters.

But to be of benefit to Glendale our Loyalty must be more than an emotion. It must be practical and workable. Loyalty to Glendale embraces speaking well of Glendale and being courteous and friendly to visitors and strangers. It means keeping our dollars in Glendale where they will help Glendale institutions. The really loyal Glendalian does all of these things almost without volition.

The advertisers on this page have entered upon a campaign to promote Community Loyalty. They are not selfish in working for a Greater Glendale. The movement is too big to embrace personal selfishness. Community Growth is assured when all citizens are loyal. These advertisers ask you to help.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

Calories

We have discussed the "Food Sextette" — carbohydrates, fats, proteins, mineral elements, vitamins and water—and now we come again to the calories. You must have a general knowledge of calories or your education in the scientific principles of diet will not be complete nor effective.

Perhaps you have heard that the "calorie theory" has exploded. Oh, no, it hasn't. In the first place, there is no "caloric theory," any more than there is a yard theory or a quart theory. A calorie is simply the standard unit of measuring the energy value of food and heat.

The carbohydrates, fats and proteins are the elements that can be estimated in calories. The mineral salts and vitamins are vital to the system, but they do not furnish in themselves sufficient energy or heat to be measurable in calories. It is for this reason that you hear unthinking (and sometimes bum-thinking) people say that the caloric "theory" has been exploded, or that it is absurd or misleading. All of this is untrue.

In the scientific feeding of infants, children and adults we are now using the caloric values of foods more than we ever did. Of course we always emphasize the importance of getting the needed calories from those foods that will also supply the equally necessary vitamins and mineral elements in the right proportions and in sufficient amounts.

The chief reason so many of our adult population are overnourished and diseased, and so many of our children are undernourished and therefore diseased, is because the importance of the caloric values of foods has not been generally known. These cases have proved that instinct is not always reliable as a guide for the amount of food or the kind of food necessary for well-being.

However, we are learning rapidly, and just as rapidly are we improving. Through the knowledge of food values, as expressed in calories—measured feeding—combined with our newer knowledge of vitamins and the importance of the mineral elements, the overweight are reducing and are improving their health and efficiency. And the undernourished are gaining and are healthier and happier.

So, let me repeat, the calorie is not discarded; nor will it be unless a better unit of measurement is discovered to take its place. So far this has not happened. When it does, I promise to keep you informed.

I know that if understanding calories required a lot of mathematical work and time, many of you would have to continue to feed yourselves and your children by guesswork. Happily, however, the 100-calorie portion has been taken as a standard because there are so many ordinary portions of food which are just 100 calories, and you will see that measuring your food by their caloric values will not be difficult when I give you a list of these.

You do not have to know the caloric values accurately. You could not know them accurately unless you were to have the foods weighed, and you knew exactly the proportions of fat, carbohydrates and proteins in them, and this, obviously, would be difficult and complicated. The approximate knowledge which I will give you will serve just as well for ordinary use as would the accurate knowledge.

Do you have to know the caloric value of foods, and how many calories you and your children are taking, if they are growing properly and you are all perfectly well? No, you do not, for apparently you and the children are getting the right amount and the right kind of food instinctively. But you may not continue well, the children may not continue to grow normally and be normal weight—then you must have this knowledge to find out whether the abnormal conditions are brought about by faults in your diet.

And even if you and your children are all well and continue to be well, you must have this knowledge of calories or you will be ignorant of part of the broad science of nutrition. (And it is possible you need the knowledge now, for yourself or for some other adult member of the family. Haven't I had a letter from you telling me how much overweight you are?)

So—that's settled. Now, tomorrow I'll give you this little knowledge, which is not going to be a dangerous thing.

Tomorrow—Calories, Continued.

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose 4 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 250 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember, it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s. a. s. e. if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

HERE ARE TWO 'LEADING' LADIES!

Ready For The Southern California Fair

"Oh, Girls! C'mon Over To Riverside"

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 24.—Racing, driving, music, entertainment, harness and running races, men's and women's two-mile relay race daily, a continuous carnival with many features—these are a few of the many attractions in the entertainment line which have been provided for the visitors at the Southern California Fair which opens at Riverside October 9 and continues for the balance of the week. The Fair will not be open on Sunday, positively closing on Saturday night, October 13. In addition to the entertainment features there will be the greatest exhibit of horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, rabbits, poultry, apiary and dairy products ever given in the southwest. The largest automobile, truck and tractor show is also promised.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My brother has been married four years, but until recently he has lived in another city. Now he has taken up work here and lives in our vicinity. He has a baby girl, two years old, and she is the dearest child I have ever seen.

I had always heard wonderful things about my sister-in-law, but I had never seen her before they came here about three months ago. She is a very striking girl and seems to attract most people. My brother seems to think she is just right. I can't understand why he is so blind to her though, because she would make most men miserable with her complaining.

Nothing my brother does is right. She corrects him for all sorts of little things, and she orders him around as if he were a servant in the house. It nearly makes me crazy to see the way he is treated. My brother has a sweet disposition and has always been very easy to get along with, or I know he could never put up with his wife.

Last night I was over there when they were having some friends of my brother's there. My sister-in-law was telling what fussers men are. She said my brother was fussing or complaining about something all the time. I stood up for him and I could see she didn't like it. The thing that hurt me was that my brother told me that his wife was talking mostly in fun and not to take the matter so seriously.

It breaks my heart to see the future my brother has to face, because a woman who nags always gets worse instead of better. What would you advise me to do in my effort to help him?

FANNIE S.

The kindest and wisest thing for you to do is to stay out of your brother's affairs. He has managed to get along happily without your assistance so far, and doubtless he will remain happy if you refrain from pointing out his wife's faults to him. All of us have faults, but it is evident your sister-in-law has virtues which overbalance her failures sufficiently to retain your brother's love and respect.

Interference into other people's affairs is dangerous, but particularly so when it comes from the "in-laws." Don't be so critical of your sister-in-law and try to see her lovable qualities instead of those which antagonize you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me what I can do for blackheads. For several years I have been bothered with them on my nose. I have been afraid to do anything for them because different ones have told me it is best to leave them alone. They are small, but my nose is completely covered with them. Please advise me. S. A. B.

Try the green soap treatment for a bad case of blackheads: Tincture of green soap, two ounces; distilled witch hazel, two ounces.

Let this mixture stay on only a few moments, then wash off with hot water.

If the green soap irritates the skin, as it sometimes will, use it every other day. Apply a cold cream.

Green soap may be purchased at any drug store. It is not a regular "cake soap," but is of about the consistency of custard.

Open each seed acne with the point of a fine cambric needle. The hardened mass must be pressed or picked out. The empty sac of the gland should then be bathed with a little toilet vinegar and water, or with a very weak solution of carbolic acid and water. Sterilize the needle before using it by dipping into boiling water, as the use of any instrument, unless the skin as well as the needle is thoroughly cleansed, is always dangerous.

BEAUTY CHATS

by EDNA KENT FORBES

SCHOOL GIRLS

A mother with two girls in boarding school writes to ask what she can send them in the way of "beauty preparations." Schools are very strict about face powder and make-up, and quite rightly. There are many years ahead for girls to experiment with eyebrow pencils and lipsticks.

I do not think that a jar of cleansing cream is out of place among a school girl's toilet articles, but some schools object even to this. None, however, object to the useful bottle of tasteless mineral oil which every thoughtful mother packs into the traveling bag. A little of this rubbed into the skin is as cleansing as cream (of which it happens to be the greater part anyway) and an excellent thing to use before washing the face, and after exposure to cold air.

The school girl needs plenty of mild, pure soap. Castile is always the best choice. She need not use powder; if she rubs over the skin with a soft washable chamois before going out, her skin will have no shine at all. If she insists on powder the little compact cakes will do, the temptation to apply a thick powdery coating being much lessened. She needs a lotion to keep her hands from chapping in cold weather. Honey-Almond lotion will do; no rose-water, glycerine and borax. She needs a full manicure equipment. No school mistress can object to that!

If she has a tendency to pimples, the Health Director of the school should see she has a proper diet. But she should have a small bottle of a saturated solution of acetanilid and alcohol, to dab over the pimples at night to dry them up. She should have a bottle of peroxide among her medicines, touching the pimples with this, pricking with an antiseptic needle, squeezing and touching the skin again with peroxide, will get rid of them more quickly.

Curley:—Any druggist will make up the eyelash tonic for you. I cannot state the cost as prices vary so in different localities.

Blondy:—You can use either butter-milk, lemon or cucumber juice for bleaching a tanned skin.

Too Thin: — Cocoa butter comes in cake form and may be purchased at any drug store. Heat slightly and rub the surface of the cake over the palm that you use when massaging. As it is a heavy oil only a very little need be used. I do not know how long it will take for you to see the results from this treatment.

Beauty Treatments Should Be Simple

Constant Reader:—As these paraffin injections are only under the outer layer of skin, I do not see why they could not be removed.

This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. With the Women of Today

Miss Laura Harlan, daughter of the late associate justice, has been retained in the White House as Mrs. Coolidge's social secretary. She acted in that capacity for Mrs. Harding. Miss Harlan is very well known in Washington social circles.

FEMINISM IN SOUTH AMERICA

"There is an unmistakeable woman movement in South America," writes Carrie Chapman Catt in The Woman Citizen, "but it is in that state of individual effort which preceded the organized demand for various rights before 1848 in the United States. Women are admitted to universities in most of the South American countries, and women's colleges exist although not of high standards of curricula. Girls go to the United States, France or England to take degrees, and governments assist girls to education along special lines in foreign countries in order to improve the quality of home teaching. Young women study law and a few practice it. There are several women physicians in each country, and we found women journalists everywhere, although limited in the character of work done. Curious invasions of old-time customs are seen, such as street-car conductors and women hotel staffs in Chile and women bank clerks in Panama. The Y. W. C. A. has branches in all the countries we visited and has led out in several directions quite new in South America."

TONS OF FACE POWDER USED

The agricultural department reports that American women

Miss Laura Harlan

used 20,000,000 pounds of face powder last year. This is an average of about eight ounces for each woman.

CASSEROLE DISHES IN THIS WEEK'S MENUS

Dinner

The usefulness of the casserole is undisputed. Almost every housekeeper possesses at least one casserole dish. Or, if she cannot afford one of the regular casseroles (the most attractive kind come with a nickel holder into which they can be slipped before being placed on the table) she at least is equipped with some sort of baking dish which has a tight-fitting cover. Cooking in such a dish is slow but thorough, all the nutritious elements in the foods being preserved. Furthermore, the flavor of foods cooked in earthenware is superior to that of food cooked in metal, particularly in the case of the more acid fruits and vegetables (earthenware is not attacked by the acids in fruits and vegetables.) The menus this week call for the following:

Ham en Casserole: Buy a slice of ham weighing about one and one-half pounds, cut about three-quarters of an inch thick and brown on both sides in your frying pan. Then lay it in a casserole, sprinkle it with enough salt and pepper to season, one-half teaspoon of celery seed, one green sweet pepper chopped finely (seeds removed) four whole cloves, and one large, peeled onion also finely chopped. Cover the ham well with sweet cider, put cover on dish, and bake in a moderate oven for three hours. It is delicious served very hot.

Casserole of Rice and Tomatoes: Wash one-half cup of rice, then add it to one pint of canned chicken soup (or to the same quantity of good, rich soup-stock) and bring to boiling point, allowing it to simmer until the rice has absorbed all of the liquid. Now butter a casserole. Peel and slice four large, ripe tomatoes. Put the tomatoes in layers with the rice in the buttered dish, dusting each layer with a little salt, pepper, and chopped uncooked onion. Sprinkle dry bread crumbs thickly on top, dot with bits of butter, and bake for 40 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot.

Chicken en Casserole: For this dish you must have a casserole large enough to hold a whole chicken (with cover on). The chicken must be cleaned (but not stuffed). Line the casserole with uncooked slices of bacon, put the bird in whole, sprinkle with salt and pepper to season well, and also with one large onion finely chopped. Then arrange around the chicken four or five small, skinned tomatoes and four stalks of celery cut small. Add one pint of either rice soup-stock or canned clear soup (chicken soup or consomme). Cover the casserole and place it in a moderate oven for two hours, basting the chicken about every 20 minutes. Before serving, thicken the gravy with a little flour (leaving the vegetables in it) and serve hot.

Lassen Is Man-Made Volcano, Says Savant

MARTINEZ (Contra Costa Co.), Sept. 24.—Mount Lassen is a "man-made volcano so far as the emission of steam is concerned," according to Samuel Hubbard, curator of archaeology in the Oakland museum.

"It is only recently that Mount Lassen began to smoke up, and those acquainted with local history will tell you that it was only after the creation of Lake Almanor (an artificial lake caused by damming up the water above the base of Mount Lassen in Big Meadows) that Lassen showed any signs of activity. When Lake Almanor was created it backed up the water and flooded some of the old fire chutes of the extinct Lassen volcano, and the resulting steam came out of the ancient crater."

Japan Imports Dairy Cows for Milk Supply

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 24.—Convinced by scientific experiments that more general use of milk will result in increasing the ruggedness and stature of the race, the Japanese government is encouraging the introduction of California dairy cattle into Japan to provide an adequate supply of good quality milk for Japanese babies.

Such was the statement of Atsushi Miyawaki, head of the Japanese Department of Dairying and Meat Technology, when questioned by Director G. H. Hecks of the California Department of Agriculture, relative to large shipments of dairy cattle which have recently left California for Japan.

Mortgage Loan Firm Organized in Glendale intimate knowledge of the automobile industry makes him especially valuable to the auto finance department of the new company, enabling him to safeguard intelligently the company's business in that line, while his experience as an investor in local real estate gives him a knowledge of values that will serve admirably the new organization.

J. F. Lilly, secretary and treasurer of the company, has resided in Glendale for twelve years, but during the past three years has had interests in the San Joaquin valley which kept him there much of the time. The lure of California caused him to relinquish the vice-presidency of one of the leading banks of Colorado Springs.

Coming to Glendale, Mr. Lilly showed his faith in the community by very considerable investments in local real estate, doing some building, but devoting himself for several years to a mortgage loan and insurance business.

Later Mr. Lilly became interested in auto finance, which led him to become distributor for the Nash line in Kern county. Recently he came back to his first love, and by reason of his long experience finds himself fully at home in the active management of the new venture. Mr. Lilly has served as secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Green Active Head

Mr. Green and Mr. Lilly will give their entire time to the business, and may be found during business hours at the company's home at No. 10, 211 East Broadway.

Associated with these men as directors will be Dan W. Green, a successful publisher of Los Angeles, but living in the vicinity of Glendale, where he has made his home for thirty years. Dr. T. C. Young needs no introduction to the people of Glendale. His willingness to invest in the company and serve on its board of directors is a matter of gratification to his associates.

The profits of a well-conducted company of this type are well known, and many have indicated their intention of becoming partners in the company through investment in its preferred shares, which are to be marketed in limited quantity on a basis that should prove very attractive.

Why—a Headache?

Weekly Health Talk No. 102
By Drs. Eble & Eble, Ds.C.

UNCLE BEN SAYS:
"'Taint how much you know, Nevvy, that you get paid for — it's how well you use what you know."

Don't feel that the man who tells you, "I have a headache this morning," is complaining about a trivial thing. Energy, strength, enjoyment, all go when the dull throb begins to beat away in the brain. "Like a thousand little devils pounding on my head with sledges" is one sufferer's method of describing a headache.

As time runs on, headache becomes more and more frequent. The cause is a misalignment of the spinal joints, which places a pressure upon the nerves to the stomach and to the liver.

The chiropractor adjusts the spine, releases the nerve from the bone pressure, so that they are able to function normally. The organs respond to the normal stimulus and the road to recovery is open.

Have your spine X-Rayed. It tells the story.

EAGLE ROCK

P.-T. A. DRIVE FOR MEMBERS STARTS

Whole Family Beseeched by Kiddies to Join School Organizations

The P.-T. A. drive for 1000 members is on. And what is more, the kiddies have been actively enlisted to help put it over, with the special inducement of a fine part yfor the class bringing in the largest enrollment.

So mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, cousins, nieces, aunties, grannies, nephews, gran'pas, uncles, friends and all others not included in these classifications are to be solicited for four-bits each, reports Mrs. J. C. Reiter, president of the Eagle Rock Parent-Teacher association, the drive starting today.

The Dahlia Heights and San Rafael schools will co-operate with the Eagle Rock school in the drive, and competition amongst the various classes is expected to be keen. Under the direction of Mrs. G. E. Arbogast, first vice-president of the Central association, captains have been appointed for the several districts of the community and every home in the valley will be visited.

"All Should Join

"Our organization is part of the city, county, state and national Parent-Teacher associations," says Mrs Reiter, "and I believe every resident not only of Eagle Rock but of the whole United States should be a P.-T. A. member. The importance of this body in training the future citizens of America cannot be overestimated.

"A membership of 1000 will be a splendid foundation for the year's activities. Our school faculty has been enlarged, new departments added and last year's enrollment has been greatly exceeded, yet we have less classes on part time now than then, while the P.-T. A. cafeteria is serving nearly twice as many as formerly, all of which work means added expense and greater need for an enlarged enrollment."

"I believe in the P.-T. A. because it means just what it says," states Mrs. Koen, one of the teachers at the Eagle Rock school, "an association where parents co-operate with teachers for the best interests of the children."

"The P.-T. A. is an organization that links home and school together with one purpose—development of the child," says C. W. Preston, superintendent of Eagle Rock schools. I believe in it from the ground up, because I know the many good results it has accomplished."

Local Notes and Personals

Plans are under way for formation of a Junior orchestra in Eagle Rock, in conjunction with the Sunday school of St. Barnabas Episcopal church. Fred J. Delaware, of Detroit, is in charge of the work and states that he would like to hear from everyone interested. The orchestra will be open to all young folks of the city, irregardless of their church affiliations, he states.

Eagle Rock is over the top in the Red Cross Japanese relief fund drive, having raised its quota of $500, reports Miss Ong, secretary of the local organization.

Sergeant Jud Cornwall, Eagle Rock's popular desk man at police headquarters, has assigned an officer to the Colorado boulevard and Castle avenue crossing during school hours, to help the pupils navigate the busy thoroughfare in safety, and parents are urged to have their children cross the boulevard at this point.

The hobgoblins will walk to the tune of the Improvement association's music, the night of October 31, when the showrooms of the R. A. McLean Motor company will be dressed up like the Biltmore and the foolishest costume will win the prize—all of which is just another way of saying that Hallowe'en will not pass unnoticed in this hamlet, according to Mrs. F. M. Runge, chairman of the committee in charge of the doin's.

Oakland Agency Will Build $13,000 Garage

A $13,000 garage is now being built at 420 East Colorado street as the new home of the local Oakland agency.

Building permit for this new structure was taken out by Max L. Green of 211 East Broadway, president and general manager of the Valley Mortgage and Investment Company.

Contractor Elmer Elliott of 612 East Elk avenue has started work already and T. E. Ricketts, agent for the Oakland, expects to move his present quarters at 219 West Colorado street into his new premises about the first of November.

This one story brick building will have a width of 40 feet and a depth of 140 feet. The front of the building will be occupied by an automobile display room. The front is to be made unusually attractive.

Musical Glendale A. W. O. L.
Klan Versus Government
Laws Must Be Obeyed
Rasps from Editorial Saws.

By Gil A. Cowan

AUSPICIOUSLY opening the musical season in Glendale Saturday evening, the concert of Henry Cantor and associate artists is reported as one of the most magnificent presentations the Tuesday Afternoon club of this city has ever had the privilege of staging.

However, a member of the club roused the writer from a late sleep Sunday morning to ask that we publicly censure the local music lovers, and particularly the musicians who were NOT present. Musical Glendale was noticeable by its absence, she says.

And then she enumerated the musicians of the city and those who sponsor the better things in music who were noted among the fair-sized audience. You could count them on your fingers, according to reports.

Los Angeles and Hollywood were well represented, though, and several parties motored ten or twenty miles to applaud Mr. Cantor, Mr. Nielsen, Mme. Zebrowska, Mme. Romanowska and Miss Hanners.

Considerable space is being devoted in the columns of the newspapers throughout the nation to conditions which exist today in Oklahoma. Without malice, may it not be said that it is time for the federal government to act, irrespective of the consequences, and bring to an end any "invisible empire."

We have no fight with the Ku Klux Klan, but its leaders should be prosecuted on charges of attempting to overthrow government in the state of Oklahoma, for there is no doubt in any reasonable person's mind but what a conspiracy exists—and it is a national conspiracy—to control the United States through the dictates of a secret order.

In California we have done away with the secret caucuses of the political parties. We have given the people a voice in government. And other states have done likewise. If people are not fit to rule themselves certainly no self-appointed lodge organization is capable of taking the reins. It is presumtuous on the part of the Ku Klux Klan.

It matters not whether Governor Jack Walton, a man held in high estem by many, is a fit person for governor. Few public officials are fit.

It matters not whether he has called out the military to stop secret sessions of the klan, to prevent mob rule, klan or anti-klan.

It matters not whether the legislators are right or wrong in their desire to impeach the governor; the law of the land must first be obeyed.

We have just observed Constitution week. It might be well for klansmen, as well as all others, to read the fourteenth amendment dealing with the rights of man.

America can brook no secret order intent on doing that which cannot be accomplished through law and order. Furthermore, Americans will not be misled into believing otherwise.

It is not a personal issue. Neither is it a moral issue nor one in which petty opinion should intervene. We have the greatest sympathy for those misguided souls who lend their reputation and prestige and intelligence to the furtherance of any movement which stands between the people and their God-given right of being free-born American citizens.

Up-state editors are paragraphers of pertinence. Here are a few of their recent rasps:

Optimism has its shining illusions, but discouragement has its illusions much darker, much more terrible.—San Francisco Call.
